There are various genres in the world of painting, which include portrait, landscape, still life, historical painting and so on. Still life belongs to narrow genres, not so wide spread, but there still are outstanding masters who are capable to demonstrate all the beauty of this style to the viewer. Shin Gong Ski is a watercolors and modern Korean painter who is famous for his marvelous pictures in watercolors technique, which are depicted in clear, transparent colors and which raise a sincere feeling of admiration.

Mostly Shin Gong Ski pictures colorful still-life paintings. Shin Gong Ski was born in Seoul, South Korea. Currently the painter serves as Professor of the Painting Department at Hong-Ski University Fine Arts College. Take a look at one of the Shin Gong Sick's works. The picture IS executed in watercolors with subtle and delicate coloring and a big amount of light. The painter reaches the effect Of inner glow by emphasizing or muting specific parts Of the picture according with the color scheme. The picture looks quite realistic due to elaborated pieces of the work.

Various undertones of the same color merge into a harmonious unity as you can see it in the coloring the lemon or pomegranate – what reflects brilliant combination of form and color. As a conclusion want to say that the painter Shin Gong Sick's interesting compositions and skillful use of light and shadow add depth and brilliance to his paintings. Below I gathered more works of the painter with their fascinating shading-off and bright atmosphere.
