Chapter 9 (quiz)

Open source software has code that ban be updated by anyone interested in modifying itTrue

User-created content on the Web included which of the followingEither — phishing, sponsored links, blogs, or wiki websites and blogs

AOL began losing customers in the early 2000s becauseIts dial up internet service wasn't broadband

Wikis are informative websites that are strictly controlled by professional editorsFalse

The web is a participatory medium in which anyone can be involvedTrue

The Linux operating system was developed by Microsoft in an attempt to deter an antitrust suit by the U. S. governmentFalse

Many internet visionaries talk about the Web 3. 0 as the " romantic web" False

Facebook is aSocial networking site

The internet was created by private enterprise, but it has been taken over and expanded by the federal governmentFalse

A 2003 court decision upheld Congress's authority to restrict children's access to pornographic websitesTrue

Computer engineer Ray Tomlison, who invented email, established the " login name @ host computer" convention for email addressesTrue

According to the text, which of the following technological advancements have aided the internets role in media convergenceThe development of smaller personal computers, made possible through the development of microchips and microprocessors

The development of digital technologies that allow for information to be transferred as a series of binary codes

The development of fiber-optic cable, which allowed a massive amount of information to be transmitted

HTML stands for HyperText Markup LanguageTrue

One form of media convergence is

The internet was designed so that a centralized authority could control communication during a nuclear disasterFalse

MapQuest, ICQ, CitySearch, and Moviefone are all owned byAOL

What was the original motivation for developing the internetMilitary and academic research

Cookies are information profiles that allow a website owner to chart the computers users movement within the website and collect other information about the userTrue

ARPAnet is a browserFalse

Talking Points Memo is a leadingBlog