

Phil lit

ASSIGN BUSTER

Final Paper in Literature 1. Deadline of First Draft on Monday, October 5 before midnight. 2. Deadline for the final output will be announced in class. 3. Email to [email protected] Subject line: Section_Name: Poet ex: 2-12_Barrios: Neil Gaiman. 4. Write an essay about the human condition of the poem. Maximum of three pages, 12, Calibri, Double Space, Default Margin. 5.

In essence, you are to write something like the introduction of the chapters of your book. 6. You are to apply a theory of reading a poem to all three poems you choose. 7.

You may either write an essay about the entire group of poems, or individually. 8. Maximum of three page. Make sure to include textual evidences when you are trying to prove a point.

9. Below is a list of questions. You are to use this questions to guide you in writing your answer. They are not to be answered directl, as if in a quiz. 10. You may use external sources to further your point. 11. You are to choose only one theory to analyze all three poems.

Ex: A Feminist Reading of Three Joi Barrios Poems. 12. On the paper I signed, the poems you submitted, handwrite an analysis of the poem line per line. Analyze, interpret, identify the figure of speech used, the tension (binary), symbolism. 13. When you say binary, that is to say the tension present in the line. For example: You sling at the stars, I bedeck the Weeds Persona is realistic while the addressed is Ideal. or Presona is here on earth while the mind of the addressed is somewhere else.

When I act a Lord, empowered, I am really a slave grovelling, ready to heed your bidding. Lord – Slave. 14. To the first hand student who will receive this email, reply so that I may know you have receive it. Forward it to all your classmates, including irregular students. Note: I apologize for this sort of impresonal transcation between you and me.

However, this is what nature is imposing unto us. The weather will no longer change, we must adapt to it. I shall give ready considerations to those who deserve it. Especially those who were battered by the last storm