

Course regarding the older people

Education

The course is one of the most involving since it is not only practically inclusive of the students but also inclusive of the people being that the subject treats as the subject. In addition, older people are the subject of the study. The option also focuses on the core value of the family which tends to strengthen the importance that the students attach to the family.

The reliability of the information and data from the field is more since the information is first hand and depicts the personal experiences of older people. Likewise, the unit offers out of the classroom type of learning that is an advantage in addition to the theoretical learning that is common in most subjects. The learners can practice what they learn in school thus creating practical, as well as theoretical skills.

The course also provides the stakeholders with the weekly outlines prior to class meetings. The act enables preparation of the students thus enabling proper comprehension of the subject. The option also incorporates the use of computers thus automating the way of doing assignments.
