

Product edition is best bat in complete SS

Product Review Product Overview Cricket Bats are made with different types of woods most common and most durable wood which is being used in the cricketing circuit is the Willow wood. Different Brands have their own preference on the woods as there are Different types of Willows woods; namely 1. English Willow 2. Kashmiri Willow Different brand bat are considered for this comparison along with differed playing margins like price, usability (Handling) , Endurance, performance and quality of bat. In light of the examinations on values over, the title of the best bat of the year is named to SS Ton Reserve English Cricket Bat. Product description SS TON English edition is best bat in complete SS Ton series. Produced from first-class grade A English willow, this version bat will offer 9 to 13 straight rich grains profile without any little blames.

The Willow is taken care of ordinarily and organized in such a route, to the point that it offers best bat execution with solidness. This bat is having Mid to low sweet spot with routine spine. With the adjust of Low to mid sweet spot and convention shape, bat offers extended sweet spot with most extreme power. Product Specs and Qualities Produced with the Finniest Players Grade English Willow Low to Mid Sweet Spot 9 to 13 straight grains 12 Piece swark cane handle with semi oval shape 38 to 45 mm edge thickness Minor Curved in Face Tow - Square Pros · Its Excellent for its wide range of sweetspots. · Its Ready to Play (Already Knocked).

· Perfect weight balancing. · It has better grip with the semi oval handle. · The Wood is very durable and knocked in properly, may last longer than the other Willows. Cons · Some people prefer thinner bats.

· If given to a beginner who plays irresponsibly may end up broken which will prove to be expensive. · It is Expensive. Other Competitors Gray Nicolls Oblivion Generation9 Cricket Bat. Gray Nicolls Oblivion generation9 English Willow Cricket Bat is created utilizing incredible quality material. It is furnished with twelve piece stick handle, the Oblivion is the perfect blend of custom and progression. The remarkable condition of the Oblivion achieves a sharp edge ideally suited for front-foot play.

With its light weight and an uncommon 41mm edge profile, Gray-Nicolls are pushing the limits of bat-production to make it less demanding for you to come to yours. Product Specs and Qualities Made from Grade A English Willow Low-Mid Sweet Spots 9 to 12 orthodox grains 12 piece semi oval Sarawak cane handle 37 - 41 mm vast ends Minor Dished surface Profile: Edge Square. Pros: · Durable in the Hottest and moist whether. · Low - Mid Sweet spots. · Sharp and strong edges. · Good thick handling for middle order batsmen.

Cons: · A bit heavier than SS TON. · It has smaller edges when scaling with the SS TON. · Good for only the middle order batsmen. · Is slightly more expensive than the SS TON. Summary I would like to conclude this review with my opinion on the products; The SS TON is notably the best bat of the year for its suitability for every batsman on any line-up, With its perfect body and weight balancing and with the addition of the wide range of sweetspots it's on a whole different league.

Following the other bat; it's been rated 2nd on the chart of the bests in the market and that mark has its reasons. I personally think that the Positives of SS TON out weighs itscompetitors and is rightly named number 1 bat of this year.