History

“ When we first got here—all of us—we were real young and innocent, full of romantic bullwhip, but we learned pretty damn quick. ” This quote was extracted from the book The Things They Carried by Tim O’Brien, and exemplifies the power that the war had in exploiting one’s innocence. O’Brien writes that what makes a war story untruthful is the “ normal stuff,” and this is fabricated because “ the normal stuff is necessary to aka you believe the truly incredible craziness.

This chapter was an important chapter in the book because it presents to the reader that the war was nonstop chaos, <https://assignbuster.com/american-dream-of-the-soldiers-of-the-vietnam-war-assignment/> because that is the only way one could describe a situation in which one would have to lie to be able to say that he or she did something normal. One example of a true war story is the “ Sweetheart of Song Tar Song.
