INTEGRITY

Integrity maybe

defined as the nature of being honest and having solid moral values that you decline to change. ACADEMIC AND PROFESSIONAL INTEGRITY Academic and professional integrity may be defined as the honesty and moral principles of the employees, workers, teachers and all other people that are responsible in running that business or institution. In order to practice Academic and professional integrity a student must not do some of things such as coping an assessment/plagiarism, should not copy during the examinations, submit their assessments on time, should not give unusual and fake reasons to get extensions. He/she should be clear about their goal/aim of their life.

Academic and professional integrity not only implies on student or employees but also on the teachers and managers of that such institution, who direct their student or employees to achieve their goals. According to me Academic integrity is basic to the scholarly existence of the University.

Under studies who utilize or endeavor to use as their own the appropriate responses, words, thoughts or research discoveries of someone else are liable of scholarly deceptive nature. Notwithstanding such demonstrations of bamboozling or written falsification, any unapproved ownership of examinations, covering up of source materials or messing with grade records are demonstration of scholastic untrustworthiness particularly prohibited by University rules. Some of the points how I will practice academic integrity in my future studies at AIH · I will never try to cheat in exams or trying to copy from others. · Be always honest and trust the teachers and do everything according to their instructions. · Perform required research to create writing. In the end I would like to say that Academic and professional integrity is very important to create a good communication between both the student/employees and the teacher/managers.
