Islamic values are defined as a set of human qualities positive and high, which must be committed by the Muslim man, which is inspired by the Islamic religion. Where it is instilled in the same Muslim by urging him to perform positive behaviors in various situations of life since childhood; The distinction between right and wrong, good and evil, manifested through interaction with parents, relatives, friends. Islamic culture as the total product of science, literature, knowledge, behavior, arts, religion, history, civilization, values and goals that resulted from the Islamic nation, which distinguished it from other nations through the interactions that have taken place for this nation between past and present. The importance of Islamic culture in building the future through the past. There is no doubt that the link between the Islamic civilization and its past is very close, so by reading the history of a conscious, accurate and impartial reading we can know the causes and factors of weakness, and see if these reasons apply to the nation at the time. Whether it really works.

We can also, through the study of history, learn how to get us out of our various dilemmas. In this discussion, I'm going to explain two values that I have learned from Islam they are ethics and science. The objective of the Muhammadiyah mission is to spread Islam and complete and confirm ethics.

Good morals and righteous deeds are the evidence of the identity of a Muslim. Religion and religious affiliation are not seen by the eye but are touched by deeds. Morals are not just deeds that are praised by a man among people, but rather a worship in which the slave draws closer to God and receives reward and reward from him. Ethics is the most important indicator of the survival of the state and nations; how many nations have been wiped away from the face of the earth because of bad morals, as happened with the people of Lot and other nations perished. Dealing with good ethics is a reason for spreading love and affection among people, pushing enmity and eliminating hatred.

Spread virtue among people and fight against vice and the disadvantages of morality that cause the spread of crime and deviation. Islamic morality is applicable to all times and places; it imposes on all Muslims good moral treatment with Muslims and non-Muslims on their different religions, races, and ideas, as well as the merciful creation in dealing with animals and the environment. To define ethics in various fields to ensure rights and to not infringe on anyone; for trade ethics, for sale, for war, for neighborliness, ethics to deal with parents and children, The importance of seeking knowledge in Islam It was pointed out through many Quranic verses and prophetic traditions to the importance of asking for knowledge and its place in Islam, and how to urge Islam to seek knowledge and diligence for this in various ways and ways. It is possible to refer to some of the things that show the importance of seeking knowledge in Islam through points. The request of knowledge leads to the knowledge of God and his own divinity and worship, as the Muslim through his request for science and diligence in the manifestations of the ability of God in his creatures will reach the unification of God all the qualities of deficiency and imbalance. Science is a consistent method of the immortal constitution of the Holy Quran; there is hardly any Surat of the Qur'an without any talk about science; whether it is directly or indirectly, it has reached the number of times that the word science came with its various derivatives in the Quran 779 times; Which is seven times in each surah. Other words in the Quran refer to the meaning of science.

It is not mentioned in its pronunciation. Examples include thought, consideration, certainty, guidance, reason, wisdom, proof, argument, verse, and evidence.
