

Federal bureau of prisons fundamentals essay examples

Business, Employee

ASSIGN BUSTER

The Federal Bureau of Prison Fundamental takes the responsibility of protecting the community from offenders. The offenders are confined in a community based and controlled environments that are cost effective, secure, humane, as well as safe. As a matter of fact, the environments provided by the Federal Bureau of Prison Fundamentals present criminals with an opportunity to change their behaviors and be citizens who abide to the laws of the community. The core values that work in the Bureau are respect, integrity, and correctional excellence. The Federal Bureau of Prisons is one of the critical models in public administration. It always provides safety by ensuring that no disturbance or escapes. The Bureau works well in the rehabilitation process since it prepares criminals to fit the community by providing them with educational, health care, spiritual, mental, vocational as well as work related programs.

The security level in the institutions are up to the standards since it is in different levels, which include low, minimum, medium, high, as well as administrative. The security level varies due to the difference in the inmates within the institution. It is worth noting that the offender within the institution have been confined for various crimes which include drug offenses, immigration, weapon, explosives, and arson, sex offenders, homicide, bribery, fraud, assault, as well as kidnapping. The fact that there are various offenders creates a lot of challenge to the institution since each group of offenders has special needs. One of the critical requirements pertain health care and sound correctional practices.

The BOP is equipped with well trained personnel, which make up about 1, 024 new employees per year. The institution has adopted strategic recruiting techniques that have always proved to be successful. The employees undergo various training skills, and are presented with networking and principle-centered leadership. In addition, the BOP has various inmate services and programs that include Inmate Skills Development, such as education, vocational, drug abuse, substance use treatment among others. Based on the article it is evident that the services and programs offered are the best in ensuring that the societies in the near future will be crime-free. The Federal Bureau of Prisons is focused in achieving its mission based on its way of operation.