

Inside beauty

Life, Love

Inside Beauty Most people think that beauty is only skin deep. Meaning that a person is only beautiful by their outside appearance such as weight, height, hair length, or face complexion. Most people do not think pay attention to the important characteristics that make and mode a person. They feel that beauty is based on appearance alone. I on the other hand think differently. Beauty is all about what is on a person's insides. Inside beauty consists of the person's love for themselves, their love for others, and finally their personality. These characteristics help shape a beautiful person. Being beautiful means knowing that you are beautiful. Not allowing others to put you down by making you think or feel that you are not beautiful. A beautiful person, in my eyes, loves the person that they are and will be. They accept who they are no matter what others say or do. They value their life and cherish each breath taken. A beautiful person does not try to change themselves because of what others think or say. Beauty requires having self respect. Displaying self respect shows that you love your body, your mind, your spirit, and your soul. They carry themselves in a respectable manner. Beautiful people think, say, and do positive things and try to stay away from negativity. Being able to love others as well as your self is also another way of displaying beauty. A beautiful person notices the beauty in someone else as well as themselves. Showing generosity to others, even to those that mistreat you is a beautiful thing. Showing love to others take courage and sometimes strength when the person is not treating you how you should be treated. Being kind hearted and helping others who are less fortunate than you shows your beauty as well. Giving your will to help whether its saying something nice or doing something nice also displays your beauty. Having a personality that makes every one love you is beautiful. Finally, a beautiful person has an amazing personality. A person that is well liked and laid back demonstrates that they can be loving, fun, and cool to be around. A person being easy going and a person that someone can talk to at a time of need is beautiful. A person that makes someone else's life a joy is beautiful. Making someone feel loved and needed is definitely showing beauty. A person is beautiful to me when they love themselves, love others, and have an amazing personality. Beauty is more than just appearance, it is how a person carries themselves in the inside. Knowing and accepting their beauty, acknowledging someone else's beauty, and finally having a personality that allows others to feel beautiful and see their beauty.
