It is true that parents are the best teachers of their child.

Every child has been influenced by their parents from their early life. The main responsibility of the parent is to teach the children about the world, which is right and wrong. For achieving this, the parent-child relationship should be close and friendly.

Firstly a family's role is very important in society. Children learn by watching the examples of others such as speaking, eating and walking. The family's purpose is same. An example of it is that sons, who have seen father's rude behavior extreme violence towards another, practice these same activities. The role of the family is to be a model so that others within the society can relate and it results in the betterment of the society. The example you set for your child is dangerous as each day. Mitchie Kenney, L. S.

S. P says truth is, " Modeling behavioral expectations for your child" and also " Do what I say, not as I do," simply doesn't work when it comes to effective parenting. This is an origin because of which today's young parents are more devoted towards their children. Secondly how to respect others is learnt by watching how parents communicate with others especially when there's a disagreement. According to David in ' Lessons I Learned From My Parents', in situation like these, parents always listened to the other person patiently, explained their perspective and tried to find a solution that is acceptable. Calvin Sun of TechRepublic says in his essay, " water under the bridge", means that if a matter is settled don't keep a record of it. Get rid of it, scrolling the past differences leads to productive results and can also lead to bad feelings. Looking back is only to learn what happened, so that you can avoid similar mistakes in the future.

Third of all parents are not only an example in one's life but also teach about responsibility about life. At home mother can ask for help in cleaning or cooking. Father can ask help to repair some things at home or want one to organize and clean up their room. This experience will lead one to help people, to share their responsibility and learn how to leave all together in one house. This is important otherwise this knowledge can't be learnt at school.

This teaching of theirs will help in our practical life. Moreover, parents have a great influence on children's success in school as well. For instance, if a parent shows an interest in their child's study and talks about the importance of learning, the child will listen and do best in studies. However, there's another opinion as well on the same topic. The classmates, friends, and teachers also have a significant role on child's growth and development in school. Classmates have many things in common like age, interests, ideas, and so on. Discussing their ideas about different topics, gives new knowledge and experience. Doing their home work together, sharing the fantasy and some unforgettable moments.

As a result of this, classmates can change child's attitude towards school. To be friendly is to smile, to have warmth, to exude a sense of kindness, to be forgiving and compassionate, and to be the kind of person that other people like to be around is different. Friends care about each other, by supporting others through painful and sorrowful times, as well as in times of joy.

A friend in need is a friend in deed, having a better understanding of feelings, the peer pressure, the thoughts you would be having. Teachers are also like parents yet not sharing same house which makes them a little stranger. A teacher can guide kids to be honest by setting a good example in class. The instructor should be honest in dealing with the class.

A teacher will always read and tell class stories about honesty and dishonesty, and how dishonesty is never really appreciated or this is never possible that dishonesty is not caught. Studying hard, the hard work should begin in the schools and classrooms. Students must not be allowed to be lazy, and they should be required to complete all assignments on time. Students should be given proper time to think and then express their ideas.

The concept of thinking time is a slot of silence between teacher and students so that both can process tasks, feelings, oral reply and actions. A good teacher will get his students work hard by offering them rewards that include comments of appreciation. To put it in a nutshell, relationships between parents and a child play an essential role in child's success in future life. If this culture remains parents should not be afraid of bad influence from the outside. Without parents this world is a lonely place. A parent is the only person who's going to stand with one in any condition.

Being punished by them is to teach a lesson. No doubt, at times having a feeling of them being irritating is something usual but soon you will learn that it was for your own betterment. The feeling when parents are around is like having a treasure.
