Paris The Best Place To Be

Paris is the capital city of France, one of the top most places to be in France, and its naturally one of the best places to visit when one comes to France. It has a demographic of about 66. 3 million as at the year 2013 with a life expectancy of 81. 8 which ranks it globally 10, and the area is about 674, 843 kilometres(About-france. com). Paris is very welcoming when you look at it from outside, and it has the nicest and well-mannered people who are very polite and welcoming. The food served there are the most diverse in the whole country with Soupe à l'oignon, Wine, Cheese, Boeuf bourguignon, Chocolate souffle being the top foods that people like. And it's a must try when you there. If you are desiring to have a lovely day at Paris driving around offers the best in terms of its well-developed infrastructure. The infrastructure consists of mountain roads, fast trains and you can even go for some good time in a well-established waterway. Disneyland, The Louvre, The Eiffel Tower, Georges Pompidou centre and Château de Versailles are one of the best views that many tourist visits and they offer the best tourist experience. They are just an hour apart.

France is at the peak of the list with great developments and researches done making it to be on the forefront. Recently they were able to undertake a permanent artificial heart transplant on a patient, the first ever in the world. The climate is very welcoming varying from region to region with cold winters and hot summers as the continental climate. The Mediterranean region experiences warm and dry summers, rainfall from October to April and an ample sunshine throughout the year(Mapsofworld. com). So when you are visiting the weather will never disappoint you since you will get to choose what time to visit. It has a flat plain or gently rolling hills both in the north and west, and the remainder of France is mountainous thus making a safe area that one can hike and have the best outdoor experience.

Its major national holidays are Bastille Day, Jour de l'An, Pâques, Lundi de Pâques, Fête du Travail, and Fête de la Victoire 1945. They treasure and value this holidays. The region has Roman Catholics and Protestants as the major religions with a small percentage of the populace Jewish, Muslim and there are those who are unaffiliated too. The dress code is just like anywhere in the world, come on, one would not expect that the whole city or country, millions in population to have a single dress code. The important thing is that you dress to impress just like in the US. Their primary language is French, and that plays a part in their culture and customs. You should not be astonished when you see people lightly kissing on the cheeks, both on the left and right cheek simultaneously, it's a common practice between friends. Handshakes are an everyday thing. And you will be expected to say 'bonjour' or 'bonsoir' coupled with the honorific designation Monsieur or Madame when entering a shop and 'au revoir' when you are leaving. So a little learning of the common French terms which is their national language will go a long way.

The airlines are quite in number, Air France being the most famous and the fares are very affordable just a little above $750. The hotels are very creative and appealing to the tourists. Just seeing an hotel gives one the best experience ever to talk about. Some of the prominent hotels are Hotel Georgette (€87), Absolute Budget (€30pp), Hôtel Ecole Centrale (€80), Hôtel de la Herse d'Or (€79), Port Royal Hôtel (€53) (Infoplease. com). The US embassy is just close by and accessible at Avenue Gabriel near the Place de la Concorde, Metro Concorde in case you have an issue that you want help. Paris is just the place to plan a holiday for and by now you should already be ordering a one way ticket to France. You will be welcomed with open hands in all the life aspects.
