

Bernard marx

Politics, Marxism

Bernard is very inquisitive meaning he is curious about lots of things that happen in this society, like all the conditioning that people go through to make them ideal. On page 96 it states in the text, " Through his discomfort Bernard eagerly listened. " Bernard, who is trying to take a trip with Leni Crowder to a savage reservation in New Mexico. Takes in his permit to the Director of Central London Hatchery and Conditioning Centre. The director is kind of like the boss over all that happens in the conditioning part of London.

He notices where Bernard is going and started to tell him about the time that he went to the same reservation. His story about how he lost one of his many partners while hiking a mountain made Bernard uncomfortable but he was also intrigued about the dangers that this place might hold. The Savages lived very different and they were very barbaric compared to how Bernard and the society he lived lived. Bernard was not used to hear or know what happened with the director at the reservation, he was very anxious to find out.

Most people in this society aren't curious because they believe everything is perfect. It read on page 124, " So hard for me to realize," Bernard was saying, " to reconstruct. As though we were living on different planets, in different centuries. A mother, and all this dirt, and gods, and old age, and disease... " He shook his head "It is almost inconceivable. I shall never understand, unless you explain. ". Bernard is talking to John, the savage. While they are walking at the savage reservation Bernard is confused about how differently John lives than himself.

Bernard feels like it is very lonesome and alienated in a way. He is curious about how or even why people like John live that way while they could be part of a much more efficient society. He has a hard time believing that they like living that way and dwells on John to have him explain their way of life. Another time that Bernard had an act of inquisitiveness is on page 117. 'Bernard's questions made a diversion. Who? How? When? From where? "

Bernard and Enola are on the savage reservation. They just witnessed a whipping ceremony and a man named John asks them if they were from the other land.

Bernard wants to know how John knew they were from the other land. He was curious about it and he was curious about John himself. Another trait Bernard portrays throughout the story is that he is intellectual or intelligent. On page 138 Bernard says " I wonder if you'd like to come back to London with us? " John and Bernard are walking and talking in the savage reservation. In the midst of them talking Bernard realizes that if he were to prove that John as the director's son that the director might change his mind about sending Bernard to Iceland .

He was using his intelligence to save him from leaving London. What the two men shared was the knowledge that they were individuals. " read on page 67. The two men are Bernard Marx and Helmholtz Watson. They both feel like they don't fit in and are different than everyone else. Other people are too dumb to realize that they don't live in a perfect society and the way they live is very barbaric and inhumane. It takes intelligence to prove that you can be greater than the average citizen. On page 47 it says " thought Bernard Marx, who was a specialist on hypno-education. Hypno-education or sleep teaching is a very complex way of operant conditioning. Bernard Marx is the one who knows all the specifics about it. Which makes him have a higher intellectual level about how it works and what it is. Distinct is another trait that represents Bernard Marx. He is very different than everyone else, which makes him unique. On page 149 the director says "by his heretical views on sport and soma, by the scandalous unorthodoxy of his behavior, by his refusal to obey the teaching of Our Ford and behave out of office hours and just got back from his vacation and was told to see the director.

The director, in front of a whole assembly or explained how Bernard was unfit to cooperate in the society that they live in, and that is why he has to go to Iceland. The way he behaves and his beliefs are very much different than every other citizen. On page 60 it says "Bonito produced a phial "one cubic centimeter cures ten gloomy." Bernard had suddenly turned and rushed away. "Bernard and Bentonia are talking about Lenin, and Bonito notices that Bernard is uncomfortable and offers him some soma. Bernard is against Soma because it takes away real feelings.

Everyone else in the society likes to take soma because it makes them happy. Bernard is different than them because he likes to feel both bad and good emotions where other people just like to feel good. It stated on page 64, "Bernard's physique was hardly better than that of the average gamma." Bernard is an Alpha, which is the most perfect and sophisticated out of all the five castes in the society. Almost every Alpha is the same height and has similar characteristics. Bernard stands 8 centimeters short of the Average Alpha height HTH and is more slender in proportion.
