The place where people would like to visit is Disneyland in California. This is because of the recreational experience that people get in this place. The place is designed in such a manner that the visibility is perfect and also the accessibility for the audience is well designed. One attraction to Disneyland is the social value it brings to the people who visit there. There is social control and social connection with this place. Another aspect with Disneyland is the way color has been used. There is the perfect use of color. One experience with many people who visit Disneyland is that of World of Color nighttime. This is an event which is seen to be a point of interest for many people. The color mix for the World of Color night event is considered to be colorful and entertaining for many visitors. The use of space in this place is professional. This is because people find enough walking space in the vicinity. The space has been used effectively so that there is no waste that is seen in the place. There is also the consideration of design and architecture design (Kathy, and West 82).

People visit Disneyland because of the alignment of the needs of the guests and that of the environment. People get satisfied when they visit this place. One of the exhilarating features of Disneyland is the way customer satisfaction has been integrated in the design and development. The environment has been considered a major factor in the development of the place. Guests find the place in tandem with the environment. The management of the park has become the standard in which all the other parks in the world are managed. The environment is well kept and is the main attraction for many people. Everything that has been developed in Disneyland is developed with the thought of the users and guests in place.

The success of the park is attributed to the concern they have in regard to the clients' comfort. The keenness to detail and the strife to represent all the minute features make people attracted in the facility.

Disneyland is a place where the crowd is moved by their own motivation and not coercion. This is because the recreation managers strive to have the concerns of the guests in their hearts. Disneyland has a social value because of the fantasy that people get when they visit this place. This is in contrast with Los Angeles where there is social coercion of labour, ideology and state power. In this place, people feel an important component of the whole park. It makes them feel important as they are the most important aspect in the design of Disneyland. This place is also synonymous with the isolation of people in their different environments.

There is the role that is played by nostalgia in Disneyland. There is a good integration of the utopian vision of the past and the future. This is an experience that adds to the urgency and the attraction of the place. There is similarity of everything that is found in America. There are idols that have been put in place that helps visitors grasp faster the things that are commonly seen in many places of America. The stories that are told in the park are familiar tales and are sometimes there is a lot of exaggeration that is added to the stories. These are the experiences that people like about the place. These stories and experiences make people connect with the past. The social value that Disneyland has to people is that it makes people have practical experiences with the past and easily relate to their future. It makes people want to be reminded of how they have been in the past.

The social value of security is included in the Disneyland park. This is because the security of the guests has been factored in the management of the park. There is security assurance. When to visit this place, they are encouraged to stay safe. This is because of the purging that has been done of the external threats. The social threatening aspects of poverty, dirt and crime have been removed from the park. This makes the place a good place of security. The social deviance is also curtailed in this place. In Disneyland, there is the control of issues and things that make social aspects threatening. Many social vices are not tolerated like drug use, uncontrolled use of speech, and behaviours that are associated with gangsters. These are not allowed in the park.

There is also the architectural aspect of Disneyland. It has been designed in such a way that the whole place looks architecturally put. This aspect has been shown to bring the entertainment that many people admire in the place. Each and every edifice has a some symbolic value attached to it. This is the same case as Medieval and Ancient cities of the world. With the development and the design of Disneyland, the inauguration of the entertainment industry has been made possible. This is in the postmodern age. The design can be compared to that of Ludic town which is said to be excellent in design. In contrast to that of the Los Angeles city, there is a lot of meaning that is associated with the architecture of Disneyland. It has a lot of meaning in its design. There was a professional design of Disneyland buildings. The design of Disneyland is thematic where there bring a lot of memories that come when one visits the place. Most of the designs follow the motifs that were used in the past. There is also the use of fairy tales and historic considerations in the design of the place. With these designs, there are a lot of memories of the past. With this, people get connected with the many objects they saw and built in their memories. There is the strife to recreate historic buildings in the design of the Disneyland park (Einstein 63). There is the use of color in the design of Disneyland. There is the use of color which is regarded as World of Color in Disneyland. There is show of colors in the night for people who visit this place. Color attraction is an important component when creating recreational facilities. This is one aspect that has been put in place in the design of the park.

The design of Disneyland follows exaggeration of story book images that people learnt when they were young. It makes people enjoy their childhood memories. Most of the buildings were designed by world renowned architects. With the use of these abstract images, it brings abstract images to reality. The design follows the abstract images that were created in fairy tales.
