

The house on mango street writing project

Literature, Books

Male/Female gender roles (Minerva, Sally, Rafaela, Mamacita, Linoleum Roses)

The House on Mango Street Writing Project The book called House on Mango street is about a little girl that grows up in a poor neighborhood that is full of crime and violence. I think that having a male gender in the place they lived would have caused a different life style for the family. They probably would have had a little less things to worry about with a boy instead of a girl.

But if they had a girl they would be able to go places without being harassed about not being in a gang or something like that. I would much rather be a boy if I lived there than a girl. I would like to be a boy because I would be able to protect myself if and harm came my way. I would be able to stand up for my family and be able to say whether or not I would like someone doing that or not. I would also be able to stand up and say what is right and what is wrong. I would be able to go and stand up for what is right and not have to live in little houses.

There are some advantages to being a girl where they lived. Some of those advantages would be the house cook. There are some more advantages like getting their GED and going to college. So they can get a good job and support their family. They would get together so they can rebuild the place they lived in. So the kids there would have much better homes than they had growing up. She would also buy the kids there a bank account so they can get started to saving some money to go to college like she did.