Ten years ago, Tiny Opera company built a small office building to serve the growing full time staff. And this year, they have added a position for a new environment officer, so I have been chosen as the new job. And they want me to degustation the policy following by the next.

Practice models

First off, we are talking about a practice model to complete sustainability framework . Strategic planning has to become a systematic and procedural affair to become an effective Management tool. We have to model the very process of strategic management for our organisations, And our selves first. So that it becomes one plan for all to use and identify with, with one set of rules, played and followed by all. This brings about perfection and unity of effort. Where we have diverged strategic models of design in one habitat, we end up with diverging effort, and over utilisation of resources conflicting efforts very little else delivers like unity of effort by: Environment
