

Judiciary assignment

Texas Judiciary Assignment Assignment Part This case entails of some community members who had a union that lasted for three days at the Del Lago Golf Resort located near the Lake Conroe. During the first night, the security officer forced a drunken patron from the bar and locked it earlier because of the disturbing situation. On the second night, the community members met at the resort bar to celebrate a wedding, it was during the period that tension among the communities developed. This entailed of incidents that developed tension and verbal exchanges among the individuals in the party, however, the security officer did not force anyone outside the bar. However, at around midnight, turmoil broke out for a couple of minutes and literally affected those in attendance.

In this case, Bradley Smith was injured severely in the bar fight. He brought a premises liability action against Del Lago and the jury realized that the resort was 51% responsible and smith had a 49% responsibility on the occurrence. The damages were estimated to be worth $2, 874, 000, although the trial court minimized the damages by 49% and they agreed that Smith was to be compensated $1, 478, 283. Bradley smith won the case and he was compensated for his loss. This was a major reason that resulted to the judge's disagreement. In case I was the Texas Supreme Court Justice, I would conclude the risk of a criminal act that occurred in the Grandstand Bar resulted to injuries although it was not predicted. This means that Del Lago never owed any legal duty to Smith so that he would protect him fro the criminal acts of the third party.

2006. It was noted that the case was not successful since the detective used invalid forensic reports to deceive Wilson so that he would think that his fingerprints were on the ammo clip that was found lying next to the body of Amos Gutierrez. This issue focused Wilson to admit having committed the crime, although he was not involved. However, after the appellants motion to suppress, it is evident that the police officer who had interrogated the defendant had violated the Penal Code 37.09 and he confessed to have tampered with the forensic report.

In conclusion, we note that the state provides the defense of the prosecution and it was concluded that Detective Robert created the document as an interrogation technique to ensure that the report was noted as the evidence. According to the law, Wilson served half of the sentence before applying for the parole. The opportunity actuality is expected to come in a period of less than 2 years because he will receive credit for more seven years, which he had incarcerated. It is evident that according to the majority, the courts indicate that the police use trickery and deception in various interrogations. As a judge, Detective Robert would be sentenced in court for tampering with evidence and false accusation against Wilson. This would ensure that justice prevails and that the bad characters in the society should be convicted with the constitution rights.
