

My favorite class: american indian experience

Education

The learning methodology used that included lectures, essay writing, film, class discussions, and field trips were fundamental in understanding the topics and improving interactions among the students and instructors. Indeed, I enjoyed the friendly and relevant modes used by the instructors to present the topics and the fact that students were at liberty to freely voice their opinions in the course of learning.

Most importantly, the class availed a chance for the students to discuss controversial topics such as race and ethnicity that involve hard feelings and mixed emotions. Through these class discussions, we discussed these topics in a light mind and got the necessary understanding. Moreover, the reward on good attendance, the self-assessment survey, book reports, movie reviews, and other assessment procedures were very convenient and pleasant to this class. Hence, the class was informed, exciting, and worth studying.
