Once you have finished reading this you should know how these problems affect people's lives.

How many people go through these rough times. Skin cancer runs in my family. Currently my grandma is battling skin cancer on her nose and head. This has made me feel scared and worried that something might happen. This subject is so important for me and other people.

If you know anybody who has any type of cancer help them and support them, And then you will know that in this world you helped somebody who was and maybe still is battling cancer. Cancer is a major problem in this world and humans need to step up and bring kindness into this world. Humans need to step up and help out our community. We all need to show respect and show that we care. Cancer is the topic that I chose.
