Task 1.

1As Health and Social Care professional engaged in the health and Social Care settings, I will explain the different level of working partnership across the sector using the three partnership level. Before this we need to understand the definition of partnership, it is a sharing of knowledge, views and opinion among two or many individuals involved in an organisation, country or else. The terms philosophy of working in partnership refers to a state of mind, an attitude, guidance when starting an engagement to work together in the three level of partnership. Everything is linked as soon as the partnership began the potential of the staff or organisation, the service quality and all other significant factors that can affect or increase the growth of the future. Excellent partnership functioning is moreover vital for construction of well-built, successful associations inside and all over firms (Barnes, Matka and Sullivan, 2007). A good working partnership is essential if you want to have a prosperous financial increase. It is also based on trust and respect which improves the quality of the work and will be beneficial for both part.

Now will have a look to the three levels which are:- Service user Professional It is professionals that work in Healthcare, forms part of a group related to individual using the service provided. Both professional and service user has an important impact on partnership of the organisation. That is why collaboration between them is vital, this ensure the delivery of good services to patient. If the satisfaction of the patient is achieved it will help to promote the quality care of the organisation for the future. We all know that an effective team contribute positively to the safety of patients.

In our everyday life, each of mustlives according to some standard that the quality of the food we intake, thetype of transport we will travel to go to work, in terms of communicationalso. Same applies to every organisation; they need to work according to a certain standard which provides safety andreliability to the service user confidence. There are also codes of ethics that are compulsory to be respected inthe health sector. The service user professional needs to abide on theconfidentiality of information of their patients. They must not disclose or discuss neitherbetween colleagues nor with friend on data regarding service user. Rememberthat here the patients satisfaction is the main objectives, so as to maintainthe standard of practice.

So they needto be responsible, works with honesty, integrity and be accountable for theiractions. – Interpersonallt is the ability to work well withothers that is in a respectful way. In this level we have a specific categoryof patient that is elders.

We all knowthat elders have difficulty to be understood due to their impairment anddisabilities. So to be able to take care of elderlypatients in the healthcare domains, we need to show interest and has the senseempathy. It is essential to establish and maintain relationships based on trustamount everyone in the workplace including service user. The elders need to be supported byyounger staff to fulfil their daily needs.

There are some important guidelinesthat the younger need to implement for an effective and efficientcommunication. This tool is important to avoid frustration or apatheticcondition if they cannot understand what you are saying. The use of simple language, transmit information slowly and clearly and the body languages gestal will help.

On virtue that need to be highly apply when dealing with elders is the sense of patience, give them sufficient time to respond or express their views and feeling at their own path. Here we have some rules that caregiver must implement in their duty according to the Ethical principles:

- i. Respecting the person's dignity regardless of his physical or psychological state.

Courtesy is mandatory.

- ii. Respecting the person's freedom, autonomy, values and decisions (if he is competent). We must obtain his consent before proceeding with a medical act and he has the right to refuse care.

- iii. Respecting the person's integrity, inviolability (respecting essential needs, avoiding all forms of violence, preventing risks to his health and well-being). Empowerment according to Richard Carve means encouraging and allowing individuals to take personal responsibility for improving the way they do their jobs and contribute to the organization's goal. Empower the elders is simply to encourage them to gain skills and knowledge to be able to overcome life difficulties in taking care of themselves of a certain level unless their disabilities and impairments. There are some processes that are being adopted and implemented in healthcare; all this will contribute to their expansion. Among we have the right to give them speak for themselves regarding decision making on particular things. There should be a respect on their will and choices, this essential for their autonomy.

We will finish on the different type of support and help that could preserve their independence as long as possible. Our objective is to encourage them to participate in social activity according to their condition. For example a person with a physical or mental impairments can be induced in a workshop session to learn and promote his motor skills and thus developing his creativity. He can create marvellous stuffs like pottery, napkins, artisanal basket. It is an experience of working in a team even they have a disabilities. The aspect of this sharing skill is important.

Elderly are vulnerable person that need to be safeguard from harm and abuse. Based on available evidence, WHO estimates that 15.7% of people 60 years and older are subjected to abuse. These prevalence rates are likely to be underestimates as many cases of elder abuse are not reported. Elder abuse, as defined by the World Health Organisation, is “ a single or repeated act, or lack of appropriate action, occurring within any relationship where there is an expectation of trust (and) which causes harm or distress.”
