

Introduction

Sociology

It is wonderful to be able to introduce myself to you in this way. I am excited to be taking an Introduction to Sociology because I have always been interested in learning more about people and how they interact in groups. To this point, my educational background seems to have been focused on history or math, so I have not had much opportunity to explore areas of the social sciences that I feel are most interesting. I do have the most recent edition of the textbook and look forward to taking this course.

As I mentioned, I am taking this course in order to gain information about people and society in general. While it is certainly one of the required classes for my degree track, I also feel that it will be interesting to discussing issues that are relevant to me as a member of society. Outside of class, I enjoy outdoor activities and being in nature. Today's world seems to be so focused on individualism and working at a desk in front of technology. As a result, when I am not focused myself on studying, I like to get out and explore the outdoors and enjoy spending time with friends and family. I do not have too many expectations for this course, other than to enjoy each weekly topic as it comes and to look for ways that I can take the information gained and apply it to my own life. My preferred method of contact is email, and my address is _____

I look forward to the journey,
