

Organizing the power company essay sample

Business, Company

Organizing the Power Company

“ I do not believe in organization charts or position descriptions of any kind in this company” declared Johnny Ramos, president and founder of PowerCompany, manufacturer of men’s ready to wear suits and jackets. “ We are a successful and fast rising company where I want all managers and labor to work as a team. Organization charts and job descriptions make people believe they own a position on charts and want to keep it. We grew from a small company with P100, 000 annual sales to a P5 million enterprise because we pooled our resources, coming up with competitive products at low costs. We are not San Miguel Corporation with its complex organization charts.” Mr. Silang, the company comptroller, strongly defended the president, emphasizing that teamwork, not organization charts, is the key to success. Linda Ignacio, head of manufacturing , believed otherwise and declared the president’s view “ absurd and unprogressive”. Ms Ignacio said “ I could not run my department without organization charts and position descriptions. As a matter of fact, I have them hidden in my desk Johnny Ramos never sees them!”

Short Case Study Organizing the Power Company

“ I do not believe in organization charts or position descriptions of any kind in this company” declared Johnny Ramos, president and founder of PowerCompany, manufacturer of men’s ready to wear suits and jackets. “ We are a successful and fast rising company where I want all managers and labor to work as a team. Organization charts and job descriptions make people believe they own a position on charts and want to keep it. We grew from a small company with P100, 000 annual sales to a P5 million enterprise because we pooled our resources, coming up with competitive products at low costs. We are not San Miguel Corporation with its complex organization charts." Mr. Silang, the company comptroller, strongly defended the president, emphasizing that teamwork, not organization charts, is the key to success. Linda Ignacio, head of manufacturing, believed otherwise and declared the president's view "absurd and unprogressive". Ms. Ignacio said "I could not run my department without organization charts and position descriptions. As a matter of fact, I have them hidden in my desk. Johnny Ramos never sees them!"

Short Case Study: Organizing the Power Company

"I do not believe in organization charts or position descriptions of any kind in this company" declared Johnny Ramos, president and founder of Power Company, manufacturer of men's ready to wear suits and jackets. "We are a successful and fast rising company where I want all managers and labor to work as a team. Organization charts and job descriptions make people believe they own a position on charts and want to keep it. We grew from a small company with P100,000 annual sales to a P5 million enterprise because we pooled our resources, coming up with competitive products at low costs. We are not San Miguel Corporation with its complex organization charts." Mr. Silang, the company comptroller, strongly defended the president, emphasizing that teamwork, not organization charts, is the key to success. Linda Ignacio, head of manufacturing, believed otherwise and declared the president's view "absurd and unprogressive". Ms. Ignacio said "I could not run my department without organization charts and position descriptions."

As a matter of fact, I have them hidden in my desk Johnny Ramos never sees them!" y " I do not believe in organization charts or position descriptions of any kind in this company" declared Johnny Ramos, president and founder of Power Company, manufacturer of men's ready to wear suits and jackets. " We are a successful and fast rising company where I want all managers and labor to work as a team. Organization charts and job descriptions make people believe they own a position on charts and want to keep it. We grew from a small company with P100, 000 annual sales to a P5 million enterprise because we pooled our resources, coming up with competitive products at low costs. We are not San Miguel Corporation with its complex organization charts." Mr. Silang, the company comptroller, strongly defended the president, emphasizing that teamwork, not organization charts, is the key to success. Linda Ignacio, head of manufacturing , believed otherwise and declared the president's view " absurd and unprogressive". Ms Ignacio said " I could not run my department without organization charts and position descriptions. As a matter of fact, I have them hidden in my desk Johnny Ramos never sees them!"