

Studying starting to develop their personal characteristics such

ASSIGN BUSTER

Studying devote a time and attention to acquiring knowledge.

Education is necessary in each highest hierarchy. Education is the key to success. Education is the process of hone the knowledge and skills by studying.

The one purpose of education is gain knowledge, values and beliefs. Education divided in every stage, pre-school, primary, secondary school and college. The method in education is teaching, discussion, reporting and learning. This method helps the students to understand easily the lessons to gain more knowledge. There are student who was experiencing financial instability. That's why students are doing some way to fulfil and sustain their schooling. Students who experiencing financial instability was entering the life of being independent. Students will look for the part time job.

Students will be going to work in shifts. Students will work only for few hours in a day. A working student will aspire to become a professional. Students are working to fund their studies specially from lower socio economic status. " College cost are high, and young adults also want the amenities that extra money brings," according to John B.

Boshoven (2013) A student who is working while studying was starting to build their own life. Students are using their skills to do both. Students are using their ability in starting to develop their personal characteristics such as managing their time, knowing their responsibility and organizing different things. It seems that a student is working while studying is one of a sign of poverty.

There are some situations that students are not supported by family when it comes to financial support that's why they're pushing themselves to work for them to sustain their study. Being a working student is not easy, students will get advantages from it but it may also have an effect on their studies. In our generation there's a lot of working students. There are some cases why students are working because students are curious about it and they want to improve their own skills. That's why a researcher conducted research about working students to know what is the possible reason why they are doing both.

According to Carnevale (2017) students who are employed while in high school or college allocate their time more efficiently, learn about workplace norms and responsibilities, and are motivated to study harder in their classes so they can achieve a certain career goal. It's where they learn the importance of showing up on time, keeping to a schedule, completing a list of tasks, and being accountable to a manager who might give them their first dose of negative feedback so they finally realize they're not as great as their teachers, parents, and college acceptance letters have led them to believe.

It will also improve your self-awareness. Working also helps them to better understand the career pathway. According to Norman (2010) financial education refers to knowledge or an understanding on the importance of money and the use of money. It answers the question, why spend on this opposed to that.

It can literally be summed up as the wise use of money.

The researcher will go to examine the ability of each student who is working while studying. In this research, we will go to see the possible <https://assignbuster.com/studying-starting-to-develop-their-personal-characteristics-such/> outcomes of being a working student. It will also give us the real happenings on each working student. This research investigates how various study and work combinations affect academic performance.