ASSIGN
BUSTER

The Devastation of the Indies" and was a friar who became famous because he defended the rights of the Indians. He took a brave stand against the horrors and cruel blooded Spaniards, saying he didn't understand how God could allow the innocent Indians to suffer. In his document De las Casas gave his views of the nature and character of the Indians, of the Spanish, and of the Spanish treatment of Indians. De las Casas say about the Indians that they don't have malice or bitterness, they are "humble, patient and peaceable.

Physically they can't work hard because they are weak and get sick easily. They don't want to possess worldly goods and they are not greedy. He says what they really want is that they just want to learn and just to learn about God and that they are "eager and they have goodness" of nature. The Spaniards' nature, according to De las Casas, is they don't have compassion for anybody they are cruel and blood-thirsty people who treat much better horses and cows than a people, and also they are destroying an infinite number of souls and they are just doing it because they are greedy and want to become rich and to acquire De las Casas' views of the Spaniards' treatment of Indians was that they type of people they call them as beasts because of what they earn all by their actions that they took, a Captain's order to strangle this Indian noble just because they disturbed the Captain's sleep because they are screaming, and the person who ordered the Captain to execute did not obey the order that he gave you, the Captain decided to burn them slowly and watch them die.

But Hatter comes from Cuba just to say to them that the Christians are coming. He just says this just for those that are following him. The Spanish Captain he converts as an enemy of the human race, what he does is that he puts a dog as a security so they can escape or try something, the Indians make a mistake they kill some Christians so the Spanish Captain he takes this act as a revenge so every Christian that they die there goanna kill or capture thousand Indians. Hatter comes from far away to Cuba to protect the Indians and to fight with them. One of the Indians says that they been struggle them and kill them off just because they don't want to be part of them and follow their God. Hatter says that part of his followers are coming from Haiti, then they go to see the god the Christians and what happens is that there was a basket covered with a bunch of jewelry and gold and what they discovered is that if they despaired the gold there goanna forget everything and there goanna stop kill them off so they took the basket and they flung in the river.

Then they captured Hatter and they kill him just because he defended those Indians from the cruel and bloody Christians so they tied him to the stake. So a friar came to him and he says that he is going to hell just because he didn't be part of the Christian faith go to hell instead of going to heaven because a real God don't not permit. The inclusion is that Bartholomew De las Casas was a man who fought for justice because there were been cruel with the Indians because they refuse to believe in God so that's why they want to kill them off. They couldn't defend themselves and then later on the Captain he made a rule if they kill one Christian there going to kill a thousand Indians so they capture a lot of Indians and they struggle them, with these infernal methods of tyranny they debase and weaken countless numbers of Indians , when Hatter hear about how there been treading the Indians he desire to stand for them , but later on they capture him and they kill him.
