At present, the rate of youth crime is continuously increasing all over the world. In this essay, reasons for the increase in youth crime and some of the possible solutions will be discussed. The first reason is family. That is, the way a child is raised up from his/her family is related to the increase of youth crime. Youths with broken family are more likely to commit crime than those with warm family. This is because youths with broken family have no one to guide what is right and what is wrong.

In addition, youths who grow up in a violent family have the risk of committing crime. The second reason is financial problem. Youths from low-income families struggle, and this may influence them to commit crime. To clarify, they may decide to do something illegally for their survival. Also, materialism is related to the increase of youth crime. Some youths need money to fulfill their needs.

Although the youth crime rate is getting higher from the reasons mentioned above, there are some possible solutions for this problem. The first solution is to strengthen the relationship between family members. This can be done by guiding and reminding parents that warm family is the key to lower youth crime. The second solution is to educate the youths about financial management and making financial plans. With this solution, financial problems will be solved permanently. In conclusion, there are ways to tackle such problems. Firstly, one of the ways to combat the problem is to have stricter punishment.

Although, as discussed above, it can be outside factors that lead to crime, it is still important to have severe punishments to deter teenagers from crime.

All too often, because they are young, the courts are too they too should be punished if their children commit crime. To sum up several factors have led to increases in youth crime, but measures are available to tackle this problem.
