

An life which has led to rapid development

ASSIGN
BUSTER

an introduction: Volunteerism and the extent of its involvement are a symbol of the progress and prosperity of nations. As the nation progresses and progresses, its citizens become increasingly engaged in charity work.

Engaging in voluntary work is also a requirement of contemporary life which has led to rapid development and development in all fields.

The complexity of social life, the development of living conditions and the rapid social, economic, security and technological changes dictate new situations and conditions that governments sometimes are unable to cope with. Which calls for concerted efforts of all official and popular society to face this reality and these situations. Hence the role of active voluntary action and support for official efforts. The increasing demand for social services is becoming a challenge for governments, which requires the support of the official system- The absence of bureaucracy.- When a volunteer voluntarily provides his / her time and services, his / her performance is considered to be better than paid employees. On a sunny day I went out to one of the buildings under construction and took water and some cold drinks with me. I started distributing them to the workers. I felt that they were human beings like us and we should not differentiate between them and treat them equally.

And their happiness when I appreciated and treated them with kindness, and what I wanted to do this thing to rejoice and introduce happiness in their hearts. And began to talk to one of them by asking about the situation and this is what has taken place between us: I: Salam alaikoum, how are you, my brother? Worker: Hello, I'm fine how are you Me: I'm fine thank God, how do you work here Worker: Everything is fine. Thank you for your question Then the worker told me: why people look at us with contempt and as if we are not human beings. When I heard and asked saddened affected and I told him: there is no difference between us and we are all creatures of clay and God is not seen the physical level of the human being and is seen but the manners and all of us are equal in God's work and is not a defect that you extend your hands to people. This is what happened and the worker really saddened me. Experience has shown that some official bodies can't achieve all the goals of development plans without the effective voluntary participation of citizens and NGOs that can play an active role in development processes due to their flexibility and speed of decision-making.

Therefore, modern countries have taken care of this aspect to address the problems of the times and overcome many of the emergency conditions in a wonderful system of alliance and solidarity between the government sector and the private sector. Volunteerism is an important foundation for the building and development of societies, the promotion of the awareness of solidarity and interdependence among all its members. It is also a humanitarian act that has made a strong connection to the highest levels of goodness, giving and good work in all societies throughout mankind. The human being - because of the same person and his choice without coercion or coercion and without waiting for material compensation - which exceeds the benefit of the same person to the benefit of others, either by bringing benefit to them or away from them corrupting, whether physical or mental or financial effort. Prepare Voluntary work is common to humanity as a whole, as all people love charity and do not disagree with its virtues and the virtues of its members in all their religions and countries. Volunteerism expresses a high sense of responsibility of individuals towards their social environment and towards humanity in general. It demonstrates the extent to which a person can make a positive impact on the lives of others without waiting for any material or moral consideration. Which express the sympathy of man with his fellow human, and the ability of societies to devise ways to help those who need it.

Volunteerism worldwide is witnessing more development and maturation of methods and methodologies on a continuous basis with the advent of networking methodologies at the supranational levels, to the extent that we are witnessing many voluntary global bodies operating in different parts of the world. In the United Arab Emirates, volunteering is part of the cultural and social fabric of the state. Volunteering is a common practice in the UAE society before the establishment of the state, and this work was gained after the state gave great official attention at the level of leadership and at various governmental and civil levels. During the past years many voluntary bodies and associations. The awards, such as the Sharjah Award for Volunteerism and other awards, are a catalyst for this sector for further growth and expansion. The volunteer, though offering his work without asking for any fee, is determined to do more work and when he feels the size of his appreciation Society will seek more and more giving.

The UAE experience in volunteering has many aspects that deserve to be highlighted in more than one place. Therefore, this seminar aims at introducing the UAE volunteer work and how to develop it by reviewing the following topics:- The reality of volunteerism in the United Arab Emirates.- The most important challenges facing volunteerism in the UAE.- Ways to develop and promote UAE volunteerism Volunteerism is a comprehensive concept for all that is best for others. All groups are intended, from the close to the general community. Make sure that you put the most beautiful impressions with each category, and the good deeds related to this door righteousness to parents and relatives and diversify the faces of charity to them. Care for the poor, the poor, the widows and vulnerable groups, the honor of the guest, visiting the sick and alleviating their suffering, and helping the people of debt to pay their debts, establishing friendships on the values ?? of brotherhood and solidarity, cooperation with coworkers, Experiences with them, and teamwork. The voluntary work has many positive repercussions at all levels, and it is beneficial to the volunteers and those who are targeted to it and to the society as a whole, and benefits from reward and reward from God, and to provide for the psychological needs of the person and to provide him with comfort, happiness and tranquility; Compassion and compassion, and the consolidation of moral values ?? and principles in society, which enhance its vitality and positive, and promote it materially and morally, the life of nations by its principles and achievements, and activate the energies of society and investment, and mobilize efforts and fate Social and public service, contributing to sustainable economic development, providing individuals with the expertise and scientific and practical skills to benefit from them in the future, and raising the level of thinking and self-promotion.

<https://assignbuster.com/an-life-which-has-led-to-rapid-development/>

Volunteering is a great opportunity for self-improvement. Tracks of noble qualities. It should be noted that these motives vary according to the conditions of society. In developed societies, individuals are involved in volunteer work for social motives, mostly to achieve success in dealing with other individuals, spreading social awareness and gaining social value. While it is very different when compared to developing societies, where the basic motivations of individuals are related to two things, the first is linked to certain cultural and religious values ?? and principles, or the possibility of achieving a certain benefit for the volunteer from the project.