Declaration of Helsinki is an ethical principle for medical research involving humansubjects (world medical association ) (8)all the moral issue should be considerable. the law does notcover all the situations, so all the researchers have to be moral values, and the individual autonomyand human dignity should be respected during ethical testing (9). The second world war period had a lot of inhuman and unethical events like Willowbrook hepatitisexperiments, Milgram's experiments, Nazi experiments on war prisoners, and the Tuskegee syphilis,(10), after all that suffering the Nuremberg resolution was created in 1950 and it provides that everyperson has the right to decide on its own body.

The right to decide to share in research or withdrawalany time. The incidents in the period of the second world war led to finding the current human ethical laws soit's very important to spread these ethical values overall, so prevent happening of these incidentsagain. 2References: 1.
