The paper " Crime Victim Services Program Bullhead City" is a good example of an essay on law. Statistics show that Bullhead AZ population of 40, 747 is located in the county of Mohave in Arizona. The same data shows that Bullhead City is experiencing the about the same level of violent crimes as Arizona. It is estimated that 1 out of 10 people living in Bullhead City was a victim of the violence. 70% of crime constituted theft and 19% of burglaries left victims suffering from financial constraints. 3% of the affected population suffered from depression, Borderline Personality Disorder and depression from rape and sexual assault. A report from the Bullhead City Prosecutor's Office shows an average of 84 confessed that they didnt know how to seek justice from the justice. This resulted in a problem of secondary victimization. According to research in Arizona and other states, Bullhead City is more dangerous compared to its nearest cities. This has posed a problem of insecurity in the city. Many people now live in fear of their safety plus they also live in poverty due to the recurrent violence. Majority of the population living in Mohave County have access to good housing but the geographic coverage of the rural area is vast. Victims are more vulnerable to living in insecure neighborhoods. This makes it difficult for them to access victim support programs. Murder has not only caused loss of lives but also trauma to witnesses of murder.

Identify Solution

Community Oriented Policing and Problem Solving Unit (COPPS) is a policing unit formed to reduce crime rates and fear while at the same time restoring order (Walp, 58). Citizens are encouraged to work with the officers to help identify and understand community problems. This will in turn help in finding solutions to these problems. Using Surveillance Systems ensures voluntary creation of complete knowledge around an individual's social activities to curb insecurity. One's activities can be constantly watched by the state from a single chip.

Background education can also be offered to inform citizens about the process to follow and understand legal matters when it comes to the pursuit of justice (Katz, and Vincent 120). Where victims have lost property and finances, and even loss of lives, policies should be implemented for compensation. Victims of rape and sexual assault should be taken through counseling programs to deal with their traumas and disorders.

The vision of Problem Statement

Victim support programs, community policing unit and counseling programs are there to help crime victims go through a speedy healing process; enable them to pursue justice successfully through the rather complex judicial process. This will, in turn, reduce violence and crime rate and ensure security in the whole city (Walp, 96). Consequently, reduction in crime rates translates to a more productive population. Rate of employment will increase and the economy will improve. Citizens will be more assured of safety hence they will live in harmony.

Conclusion

Citizens of Bullhead City must take upon themselves to champion for their own security and safety through community policing and working with the set policing units such as COPPS. The state government should also commission more victim service units that can work hand in hand with Bullhead City Crime Victims Service Unit (BHCCVSU) to provide assistance to crime victims (Katz, and Vincent 85).

Summary of the Program
