

The is how poe wrote
this story,

ASSIGN BUSTER

The last thing I will talk about is how Poe wrote this story, which compared from his other books was that he seems very irritated in this book compared to many of his other stories. From many of his sayings like " So I opened it - you cannot imagine how stealthily, stealthily - until, at length, a simple dim ray, like the thread of the spider, shot from out the crevice and fell full upon the vulture eye". (Harper) What we gather from this sentence is that shows frustration on top of being able to get down to the very detailed information as if you are actually there.

The thing I was able to notice about this story was that with the long sentences is showed lots of description to really help our readers what the environment is really like and with the little sentences it allows us to understand more of the meaning behind what he is doing. With all the events occurring you start to put all the pieces of the puzzles together and quickly realize why he does what he does.
