Prostitution in Spain is tremendously rampant. It is worth noting that the aspect of prostitution in the Spanish constitution is not illegalized. The only thing that is illegal is pimping. There is much tolerance of prostitution in Spain. These are attributed to the fact that it existed through the 17th century during the medieval period. In critical analysis, prostitution in Spain is a problem. The prostitutes are working in various parties of the country following the high demand from men. Everywhere from clubs, to roadside restaurants prostitution is a practice that is permitted by law. In critical analysis, prostitution is a problem in Spain based on the fact that it builds an avenue for exploitation. The poor and young are exploited since there are no stated laws to protect them. In addition, there are rising cases of human trafficking that end up in the prostitution market. Reports show that most girls in the world are enticed to go and work in Spain, but on arrival they are mandatory to being prostitutes (Graham 46). Migrants fall into the trap and begin working as prostitutes against their will. Studies show that approximately 90% of sex workers in Spain are immigrants. The involvement of migrants in prostitution makes it not only a problem in Spain but the entire world. The issue of morality is also another reason that supports the problems associated with prostitution. Prostitution destroys the moral value of society in Spain. In general perspective, prostitution is a problem based on the legal aspect and moral issues.
