Countries, United States

America the Great I am proud to live in America, the land of the free, home of the brave. We have the freedom to vote, practice the religion of our choice, speak freely, and freely share our thoughts or ideas through the press. I also love how we are such a diverse nation. There are several reasons why I believe America is a great country to live in. If you are an American citizen over eighteen, you have the right to vote. I think it is important to allow citizens to vote because it allows them to have a say in our government, whether you're rich, poor, different cultures, or religions.

Our voting rights are a given as an American citizen. Our citizens voting influences laws, leaders, and other important matters. The freedoms our soldiers have fought for, including voting, are still just as important today as it was many years ago. These rights serve as a very important matter in our country, and every citizen should be grateful for having them. We have the right to speak freely and say anything we want without getting punished. We can express ourselves everyday and be proud. Another way we can express our individualism is through the press. We can speak up about the truth, through speech and press.

Another reason I am proud of my country is because of diversity of culture, opinion, and race. The United States of America is sometimes considered the 'melting pot' of the world. It has that nickname because a variety of people from all over the world have come to America to have equality. America has equality because people with different cultures, opinions, style, race, and many more, are not judged unfairly or treated differentially from other people. The past moves the future. I am proud of what has happened in the past, what's happening now, and what will happen in our country's future.
