

Lebron interview analysis

Sociology, Communication

With this decision Lebron composed this essay in order to explain himself; to his Miami fans and the rest of the world. Lebron does not want to be hated in Miami. In Lebron James' homecoming article he misleads the reader; coming home does not reveal his motives, basketball championships remain the main cause for betrayal. Months after Lebron James finalized his decision to leave, sports analysts debated the true reasons behind his motives. Coming home eases Lebron's decision, but fails to reveal the entire picture. Lebron James plays basketball better than any man in the world and, he obviously cares if he plays on a good team or not.

Lebron wouldn't abandon a talented team for a subpar squad. "I went to Miami because of LeBron and (B. " (Para. 3). Lebron first moved due to the appeal of talented players. Lebron's second decision mirrors his first move. Lebron will continue to argue that he desires to return home due to his love for Cleveland and, but he's hiding the truth. In reality Cleveland has a championship caliber basketball team. Cleveland's future seems promising with young stars like Kyrie Irving and now Kevin Love. Lebron realizes this and seizes the opportunity. Going home just adds to the glory of it all.

Even though Lebron grew up in Ohio, he loved his time away in Miami. "I will always think of Miami as my second home" (Para. 2). Lebron loved Miami; leaving solely off being homesick makes no sense. Lebron stated that he would not move anywhere without a beach in an interview before revealing his final decision. In case you didn't know, there aren't any beaches in Cleveland. Lebron decided to leave Miami due to the potential of The Cavaliers. Lebron expresses his desire to win an NBA championship once again, especially for Ohio. Lebron acts modest about The Cavaliers skill in saying " We're not ready eight now. (Paragraph 8) in attempt to ease the hate from Miami fans. Lebron attempts to downsize the team by labeling them young and inexperienced, but he also acknowledges the Eire talent. Doing this allows Lebron to appeal to both crowds. Despite his best efforts most see through his attempt to mislead. Lebron acts like his road to success will take years. Lebron compares his move to Cleveland to his first move made in 2010. He goes on to say " I wanton win next year, but I'm realistic. It will be a long process, much longer than it was in 2010. My patience will get tested" (Para. 9). Success will come early and will not be short lived.
