Steps to discriminative degree essay

Business, Industries

Due to the bad side effects of marijuana, the issue of making it legalized has been an on owing debate for over a decade.

With the struggling economy, the legalization of marijuana in many states has become very realistic and most likely to happen in the near future. However, there are also many people who still believe that legalizing marijuana is not the answer to our problems and, if anything, will worsen our country as a whole. 20 US states and the District of Columbia have passed laws allowing some degree of medical use of marijuana, and 14 states have taken steps to discriminative it to some degree. Also, two states, Colorado and Washington, have legalized marijuana completely.

From 1996 until 2011, 14 states had passed medical marijuana laws, these states are as listed: Alaska, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Maine, Michigan, Montana, Nevada, New Jersey, New Mexico, Oregon, Rhode Island, Vermont, and Washington. However, each state has it's own laws about how much marijuana a person can possess and grow at one time. At this time, a survey was done to see how many people would be okay with marijuana being legalized in the United States. The dependent variable of the study was the 14 states that have legalized marijuana.

The independent variable involved the percentage of the population over 65, the percentage that have at least a bachelors degree, the state per capita income in 2008, the percentage of the state's population that lives in urbanize areas, and the percentage of the population that voted Republican in the 2008 presidential election. There is an inverse relationship between states that have medical marijuana laws and variables such as economic freedom and the percentage of people who attend church services. In 2010, a more intensified study was done on California and Michigan. Mark Bindle traveled to the Emerald Triangle in Northern California to take a look at the rowing situation in areas that marijuana was legal. What he found was an area where you phone stops working, strange people would try to sell you crabs, and very far back in the mountains, a man who grows marijuana for a living, Vic Tibias. Tibias had 45 marijuana plants in full bloom, so Bindle was able to experience the entire process of going from a cannabis plant to being marijuana. The plants would be sold off to medical-marijuana dispensaries or to street dealers.

There were around 1, 000 storefront pot clubs in Los Angels at the time, making the marijuana business a very refutable one. Californians annual marijuana crop was estimated to be worth around $14 billion. Bindle also mentions that a Harvard economist estimated that legalizing pot could save the government around $13 billion annually in prohibition costs. It would also raise $7 billion in annual revenues if marijuana were to be taxed.

It was these statistics that lead Bindle to the Emerald triangle. The only downside he found when visiting Tibias was that many current growers would have a more difficult time because there would be much more competition. He also talks briefly about "the first Michigan-based medicalmarijuana trade school." Since the law passed with a vote of 63% yes for legalizing medical marijuana in 2008, people found the easiest way to make money was by growing and selling marijuana.

The economy may have been in a bad place, but "many residents see pot farming as one of the few growth industries in an otherwise ravaged state economy." Kristin Nevada is another person from California involved in the growing scene. She helped found the association of cannabis growers in Humboldt and she is also an idealist about pot. She explains that in 1996 marijuana was selling for $4,000 a pound. Imagine all of the revenue the government could collect if they Just legalized it and sold it themselves. In Humboldt County there are over 250 different strains of marijuana.

They met with the county government to try to brand Humboldt as cannabis county. Due to places like this, throughout the country, the once-clear lines of drug law have been steadily blurring into a messy Crosshatch of locale and jurisdiction. Benjamin Wallace-Wells also discusses the now legal recreational use of marijuana in Colorado and Washington. About 50% or voters are now pro legalization, a nearly 20% increase in less than 15 years. If the country continues at this rate, legalization is right around the corner. People see that marijuana isn't that bad and really what it's doing is wasting tax dollars. Fred Baffled, a police officer, said that he put 43, 000 less people behind bars because they focused on actually crimes rather than petty ones such as carrying an ounce of weed.

His words exactly were, "that it's always okay to go after bad guys with guns rather than guys smoking weed." Florida is another state that feels that legalizing medical marijuana would be a good thing for the economy. Pro-marijuana industry and development groups say hat there the do not doubt that legal marijuana can provide a major impact economically that business leaders in groups like the chamber of commerce should embrace.

The National Cannabis Industry Association cites a recent study by Archive Market Research that concluded the national market for legalized medicinal and adult-use pot generated about $1. 4 billion in industry value in 2013. The projected market for 2014 is $2. 34 billion.

Not only would legalizing marijuana bring it money, workers in Florida would see many benefits as well. In congress, the debate over the legalization of marijuana is a topic of much abate. With that being said, it are the members of congress that need to be convinced to legalize marijuana.

There are two staffers for the Congressional Joint Committee on Taxation that need to be convinced legalization is good. By showing them that taxing marijuana can increase revenue and cause lower taxes, it is more likely that they will approve the law to legalize. A major issue with this, however, is that Republicans and Democrats have different feelings about tax reform although in 2013, it was estimated that $10 billion in tax revenue would be brought in from marijuana sales a year. Tot could save the government mould also raise $7 billion in, these that lead dined When visiting labials NAS that because there would be much Michigan-based medical-mar of 63% yes far legalizing media make money was by growing a bad place. UT " many reside In an otherwise ravaged state Kristin Nevada is another She helped found the ASCII an Idealist about pot. She pound Imagine all of the rev it and sold it themselves In marijuana. They met with cannabis county. Due to place Tot drug law have been steadily jurisdiction Benjamin Wallace marijuana in Colorado and W legalization, a nearly inch his rate.

Legalization is right k had and really what It's doing SMS Tar he 43. 000 less p crimes rather than petty ones newer, "that it's okay to need." Florida is another state the good thing far the economy. That there the do Nat doubt the economically that business lee embrace, The National Can, Market Research that concur adult-use pot generated abaca market for 2014 IS $2. 34 billion Norse in Florida would see In congress.

The debate debate. With that being said, convinced to legalize marijuana Coot" little on Taxation that n them that taxing manual G likely they will approve try hat Republicans and Démodé 2013, it was estimated that $1 Legalizing marijuana would create many Jobs in the Un unemployment rate drastically. Many articles discuss t only people it would not have a positive impact on, as who are already growing and selling drugs. There woo in the field, but the positive effects of legalizing marijuana negative effect in the Job department. In other country theory to use or are realizing it as well.

Canada, for ins marijuana and immediately saw the effect it had leading reduce federal spending and taxes. Also, The Vancouver for Science in Drug Policy's latest report demonstrates anabas prohibition. It supports calls for evidence-bas regulate the use of cannabis. This report has received the British Medical Journal as well as support from 60 Science in Drug Policy scientific members from more t countries have implemented fewer drug laws and their United States that legalizing marijuana would be a go The exgovernor of New Mexico, Gary Johnson has al legalization of marijuana would be good for the economy impairs a persons Judgment and ability to do specific t Johnson said, "I think that we should legalize marijuana smoke pot, become impaired, get behind the wheel of gal for kids to smoke pot. But let's tax it, let's regulate improved the quality of New Mexico more than most g he must be doing something right. People are afraid o marijuana but alcohol, a legal drug, is regulated quite the same? This year, Colorado became the first state to fully leg recreational purposes. The United States has realized as a major cash crop. For instance, Dutch cannabis cafe revenue every year.

Not only does it increase revenue, created leaving the unemployment rate much lower. G November of 2013 that they would be opening the first over the world marijuana is becoming more accepted. Uruguay announced the decentralization and legalize possession, and sale of marijuana, this will take place n Europe is not the only place to loosen the ropes a II a recent study done by the Jerusalem institute for Mar legalizing marijuana would be extremely beneficial for been suffering from both political and economical crisis legalizing marijuana it is expected that around $707 mi In 2012, 64% of Israeli people voted yes for the legalize the much smaller, 26% who said the were against it. Canadians are also on edge about legalizing marijuana smoke marijuana for medical purposes. People fear the the price will increase greatly. Canada is the only count price.

If a country wants to bring in tax revenue they are going to have to make is more expensive. For those who are actually using marijuana for medical purposes, this could be an issue because have health problems can be very expensive already. Along with price increase, another concern many people have is quality decrease. It has been said, " if pot was legal, you'd never get any decent pot again." Since Colorado became the first state to fully legalize marijuana this logic has been proven wrong. People are trying to create a counterculture flavor and sell good weed. Washington is now the second state to fully legalize marijuana, but when it was still in debate mode, they stated that marijuana will be sold from 8 a.

M. Until 12 a. M. Making it almost always available. They also planned to instate a law that said authorized dealers must be at least 1, 000 feet from any public school, childcare center, playground or park. Although these laws were discussed hey are always pope to change. It used to be that marijuana needed to be grown inside, but once people started complaining and bringing up the amount of energy they were using, that law quickly changed. President Beam's feelings about marijuana also effect how and when it will become legal.

In an interview with Obama, he stated that he does not believe legalizing marijuana will be good for the economy. He has admitted to using marijuana in the past and believes legalizing it will have a more negative impact than anything else. However, in December 2012 he said that his administration didn't intend to prioritize the pursuit of recreational drug users in states that have legalize possession. That being said, since marijuana is still illegal on a national level, states tit legal use of marijuana can still get in trouble. On July 24, 2013 federal agents raided several medical-marijuana dispensaries in Washington state, confiscating product intended for cancer patients and those with other medical issues. Unless the states and the nation as a whole get on the same, marijuana will not be good for the economy because there are thousands of dollars spent on drug busts that are taking place in an area that drugs are technically legal.

Public opinion polls taken from 1969 to 2003 show that people have become a lot more accepting of the use and legalization of marijuana. However, people now seem to want harsher punishments for those who have possession of marijuana. In 1969, only 12% of the people surveyed said they believe marijuana should be legal. In 2003, the number is now up to 34% of people. Although that is not an overwhelming amount of support, this is Just a survey for some people, not the entire population that would be involved in the decision. Still, the support nearly tripled in Just over 30 years. When asked "Do you think the possession of small amounts of marijuana should or should not be treated as a criminal defense, from 1977 until 2003, the argental of people who said yes it should be increased from 41% to 52%. The question was a leading question, so I believe these results would be different if it were asked a little differently.

However, it is still only a small increase and although 52% is a high amount, there are still the other almost half of the people that believe the opposite. Once broken down, people's answer towards the possession of marijuana changed. In 2002, 40% of people believed a person should only be subject to a fine while only 22% of people believed possession should be an actual criminal defense. Still, 37% of people felt there should be no offense, meaning that 77% of price. If a country wants to bring in tax art more expensive. For those who are actual this could be an Issue because have heal' Along with price Increase, another con It has been said, " if pot was legal, you'd our Colorado became the first state to fully lei wrong. People are trying to create a count Washington is now the second state to full in debate mode, they stated that marijuana making it almost always available.

They a authorized dealers must be at least 1, 000 center, playground or park. Although the to change. It used to be that marijuana n darted complaining and bringing up the President Beam's feelings about Mari become legal. In an interview with Ban legalizing marijuana will be good for the marijuana in the past and believes legalize anything else. However, in December 201 intend to prioritize the pursuit of recreate possession.

That being said, since marijuana with legal use of marijuana can still get IR raided several medical-marijuana dispense product intended for cancer patients and the states and the nation as a whole get c the economy because there are thousand taking place in an area that drugs are tech Public opinion polls taken from 1969 etc ore accepting of the use and legalization to want harsher punishments for those w only 12% of the people surveyed said the! 2003, the number is now up to of amount of support, this Is just a survey of that would be involved in the decision. SSL years. When asked "Do you think the POS: should or should not be treated as a crime percentage of people who said yes It shot question was a leading question, so I bell' were asked a little differently. However, it Is a high amount, there are still the c the opposite. Once broken down, people' marijuana changed.

In 2002, of too fine while only 22% of people believe. Offense. Still, 37% of people felt there SSH people don't find the possession of marijuana Although so many studies have shown the but boost the economy and put our tax doll who believe marijuana should not become the automatically assume it's some dirt-bag going anywhere in life.