

Jewellery your skin suitability and adaptability to the Design, Fashion

Jewellery has a way of boosting our appearance and giving us a perfect look. However, it might be sometimes difficult taking a decision pertaining to the right choice of body jewel. The factors that you take into consideration while making the right choice of body jewellery matters a lot. Apart from fashion, trend and style, there are other factors that should be looked into that are very important.

Below are some of the necessary points required to equip you with the relevant knowledge on how to choose the perfect body jewellery; Know your skin allergy Because individual skin varies with unique attributes, we tend to react differently to substances used for the manufacture of jewellery. Some skin type easily adapt without allergies while others are very sensitive and allergic to few materials used for the production of jewellery. Therefore, when making the right choice of a suitable jewellery for your body, it is vital that you take note of your skin suitability and adaptability to the respective jewellery. For instance, titanium has low weight and less tendency to cause skin reaction on early piercings which makes it suitable for a wide range of skin types.

Some skin type adapts to the inferior jewellery while others develop burns and other terrible reactions. Choose the jewellery that is suitable for your piercing There are various types of piercing such as ear, nose, eyebrow, eyelids, cheek, bridge, etc. your type of piercing should determine your choice of jewellery because every piercing has its own range of jewellery. Jewels are customized to suit a specific type of piercing.

Every piercing method has its own form, style and jewellery suitability. Do not use jewellery for nose piercing for ear piercing or vice versa respectively. For example, the surface piercing can only support surface bars. Always choose the right size. Accurate measurement of body jewellery before choosing them is very important because it will enable you to determine the gauge, length and diameter of the jewel. This will enable you to avoid putting the wrong jewellery into the wrong piercing. Making the wrong choice in terms of size is dangerous because it can lead to negative skin reactions.

Measurement of jewellery accurately using the right tool will help to ascertain the distance between the piercing entry and exit hole. If the jewellery is longer or shorter than the piercing it may lead to tearing and irritation and delayed healing in new piercings. Always go for quality jewellery. Studies have shown that jewellery with high quality though very expensive tends to cause little or no allergy compared to inferior ones.

Inferior jewellery might be made with materials that are not skin friendly and harmful to the body. Therefore, quality should be your top priority when carrying out perfect jewellery selection. In conclusion, with the appropriate knowledge of skin type, quality jewellery selection, accurate size inspection and piercing suitability, you are guaranteed to make the right choice of body jewellery to give you that stunning appearance you desire.