

Descriptive essay

ASSIGN
BUSTER

There are many people in this world that I could dislike easily but there's only one in my mind, namely my ex-girlfriend, Jamila. She is very impatient, she's has a nag of wanting everything to be on time no later than a minute late and She's also very emotional For insistence, on Facebook if she sees a girl comment on my picture she jumps to conclusion of me cheating on her and breaks down. My other reason is that she's a liar she thinks lying is the best objectives to get her own way and to deceive people me in particular.

In my years of dating my ex Jamila she was the most impatient person. I am not particular sure of the reason as to why Jamila was so impatient however my thoughts are because of how she was raise by her mother. The reason being her mother was also an impatient woman I say this because upon meeting her mother for the first time her impatient was quite evident. Jamila her reason of being impatient is she said if someone tells her a time that person needs to be on time and that is understandable but her attitude towards it stinks.

Because of her being so impatient our relationship started to became rocky. Another example for her being impatient is when we are texting and she sends me a text if I don't reply within 5 to 10 minutes she starts to keep texting and calling me at the same time to see why it is taking me long to reply to her message. Not only is she a very impatient person she also extremely emotional. Jamila is a very emotional female she complains for almost everything.

I understand we all have complaints sometimes but she just complains for no reason and I actually think she enjoys it but it sure does bring me down. No matter what you say, she will get angry. If you try to tell her that she looks great, she'll accuse you of lying to make her feel better about her rhinoceros butt. She would start arguments for no apparent reason and then later get emotional break down and cry about it and make it seem as if it's my fault. In my opinion I think she was bi polar. If you think your woman would never lie to you, guess again.

Jamila she would start from little white lies to the more serious variety, her motivation for lying can stem from wanting to protect her own feelings or, sure enough, to save her own butt. Sometimes I would bring it up to her but she would say she doesn't lie but yet again that's a lie to cover herself up. Also she would say it's for the best to make me happy but I don't like that what is a relationship without trust. I felt she was lying to me so I could stick around and be with her but I felt use; it was a heart ache at times. It's mazing that struggle through that type of relationship for two years. In my conclusion every woman that you love later shows their real self and it's not the person you fell in love with. The good news is that many of these so-called lies, emotional breakdown and being impatient are actually slight twists on reality designed to spare your feelings or even flatter you, which means that they're not intended to be hurtful but this will also make you dislike that person. All in all this woman that I dislike won't reshape my thinking of how I see every other female.