When dreams and reality collide

Psychology

When Dreams and Reality Collide This one night I was lying in my bed and I had a terrible day. I was thinking about all the things that had happened that day and I just wished none of it ever did. I was starting to regret everything that happened that day. I thought maybe if I got some rest then maybe just maybe I would feel better and have a great day tomorrow. So that night I went to bed and I had this dream. The dream so one of the best things I have ever dreamed of. It was about me and this guy name Noah. He was the hottest guy in school. He came up to me and said "Ana Paola you look amazing today. " This guy had never talked to me or even spoken to me before because I wasn't the most popular girl in school. I was so happy that he had talked to me. Then the next day he asked me out on a date and he came and picked me up in a limo. We went out to dinner and then he said to me "I can't believe I didn't see your beauty before yesterday". I just replied with a "thanks, I still can't believe that you really like me. ". He was the guy of my dreams, I had been crushing on him for a while and he now realized me. After a while we started dating I was so happy. Then the dream ended from a loud BANG! My cat had knocked over a can and had ruined the best dream of my life. I had then realized that my worst day had turned into having the best dream ever. The next day I went to school and I was alone again. I had only wished that the dream was true. Then all of a sudden Noah came up to me and said "hey Ana Paola you look good today" I said "thank you and so do you". After he walked away I realized that was kind of like my dream I had last night. I couldn't believe that this had just happened and from there on our relationship just kept growing and sooner or later I was his girlfriend and the most popular girl in school. My life had gone from a terrible few days to a great start to my new life. I just love when my dreams collide with reality.