

Why we go to school

Business

Yes the multi-answer question, now ask yourself why do you go to school? Is it because you need to learn the material that most of the teachers say you won't use in the real world? Is it to try and prepare yourself for the future ahead? You have to ask yourself about many things to find the answer in such odd situations such as the daily routine at school.

My view on the school day is not to learn what they are trying to teach us, but rather to see how they want us to apply these skills to other situations because we don't need to know the special theorems in math but these problem solving skills are used to maybe make important calculated life decisions that could mean happiness or misery. The other major reason for assembling these many different personalities in one building, is the social interaction. I am 16 and I do get into trouble with a certain teacher and we obviously got on the wrong foot. Now you maybe be asking yourself why are you telling me this dumb story? I know that we got each other at the worst times and I have learned that's part of school as well, being a well rounded student doesn't just mean good grades but being able to see things from someone else's point of view is crucial for being well respected after highschool. See school really is all about learning just the content that you are to learn does not come from books but from the events that take place and what you learn in highschool can and will aid you all through your life.
