INTRODUCTION.

Football is one of the favorite games in the world which attracts the largest number of fans. When there is a big fixture like the world cup, football fever is common amongst its fans in countries that love football. It is Ironically then to find out that the said game lacks teams in high schools in New York. Research which was conducted came up with finding as to why the sport is not popular amongst the youth in New York. THE PROBLEMS Lack of Love for Football. One of the big drives that make players practice and specialize in a certain game is interest and the love of it. Research has it that most youth in high schools in New York have no love for football.

Instead they opt for other sports like Basketball, table tennis and athletics. The reasons for this are apparently clear. Lack of a pioneer footballers to emulate could be a good reason why the said youth is not motivated to the sports. This is because youth like emulating what adults do especially when they are heroes. This is true owing to the fact that most high school youth choose to play basket ball so that may be like Mike Jordan who played for the Chicago Bulls or better than him. For this reason young men and women take to the sports right from the time they are in primary and in high school, and they do it to perfection. That is why today Basketball is very popular among the youth in New York .

The other sport they prefer to football is athletics. They know that it pays well if they excel like Michael Jackson the fastest world sprinter of his time. Playing Ground.

Another cause for not having the football teams could be lack of playing pitches. This is because New York is a very overcrowded city. The ground is scarce resulting to the construction of skyscraper .

If Helicopters land on top of the skyscrapers because space in the ground is not enough where else would be play ground be found?. For that reason class where the children receive their tuitions are in the tall buildings which can truly afford to provide with indoor game like table tennis and others. As a result few schools have football pitches Alternatives Hobbies.

There are plenty of alternative hobbies in New York such as one would want to choose from . The recreation hall are available for those who are interested in viewing movies and live drama in the theatres. In the viewing of such, young men and women will have a chance to interact in the halls which would not be the case with a sport like football. A game like wrestling is more popular than football amongst the youth in New York. Coaches. This is another factor which in default of, which may contribute to lack of the teams. Players interest in the game is one thing and coaches availability and interest is another.

The lack of pioneer footballers in New York is a clear indication that it lacks people to champion the cause of playing the game. It is a true saying when said that train a child a certain behaviour when young and the child will grow up with it. Lack of having football in past is what is haunting New York football today.

THE CAUSES Not having Interest One reason why football is not popular among the high school students in New York is because the sport was not taken with seriousness before by the people of the past. Maybe they thought the game belonged to certain poor nations like the famous world cup fix time, champions Brazil and Argentina. It is also probable that the old people took the game to be a waste of time and inconsequential. Others thought that there wasn't much to gain from football and that there were other important games which could pay better. The other cause could be that, the game is a risky one in terms of injuries are concerned. One can easily break his leg and going by the way many people despise it, they opted to play another game that could guarantee safety. The game also demands for 90 minutes activity which may not be suitable for some city dwellers who would want to relax somewhere some have their good time. Not Having enough playground.

As I stated earlier on, the reason for not having enough playing ground is interrelated with setting of the city. The planners of the city layout may not have taken the point of the fields into consideration. They looked at the city from the business point of view and forget that their children in their high schools would need fields to play in. The question of starting the school could not have been a problem since the classrooms were available in the buildings which had been constructed to stand in the area in question. Any building with large rooms can be converted into classroom which is not the case with the fields. The ground has to be there, in order for one to prepare a playground.

Not Having Coaches. In high school, teachers are supposed to coach the games as required by the curriculum of a particular country. In case the relevant teachers are not available it is difficult to coach that particular game. Now, it is common knowledge that teachers are old students. If the said teachers did not go through a certain course say, they were not taught play football during their high school and college days, are they expected to teach other people? Certainly not .

It is impossible to teach something you don't know. So, football died in high schools long time ago not yesterday or today as many people would conclude. Possible Solutions. Prosper Planning. One of the possible solutions is that, the curriculum developers and the education watch dogs in New York should see to it that football is taught as a subject and that it is taken by the majority of the students. Away to motivate the students must be formulated by the education system to create interest among the students so that they will not only like the subject in the classroom but will as well like the practical part of it.

This can easily be done by rewarding students who perform well with certificates and other gifts in order to enhance for competitive spirit among them. Playground. In places where playgrounds are not available, the country officials should endeavour provide for alternative solution to the problem. Where possible let the schools be consolidated in areas with lesser congestion where fields can be provided so that students can go out and play. Schools also can organize o transport students to areas with fields and arrange tournaments with other school in those areas, so that teams can play, and by doing so, the game shall become popular with the students.

COACHES:-The question of coaches should be underrated. In order to have football, coaches are, a must.

In case of scarcity of the local coaches, schools can hire them. Coaches are available in developing countries like Argentina Brazil, Nigeria and other football lover countries. They are plenty and cheap and for them to be offered a job in New York would be a great achievement. Therefore it yours for asking CONCLUSION While is it true that there are a few security with playing ground, a campaign should be done to see to it that students are motivated to change their attitude and turn to football.

The few football pitches should be fully utilized even if it means, a few school to use one field . Where the fields are completely not available, they can be hired since hotels have the playing grounds and are out for hire. Cinema halls should endeavour show football films especially those of the world cup and European Championships. Clubs should be initiated in the areas around the schools and allow students to join and become members especially during vacations.
