

Premarital who can not be monogamous.
people should

ASSIGN BUSTER

Premarital sex is a huge problem in society today.

People everywhere are not waiting until they get married to have sex. People having sex today are not aware of the consequences that come with having sex. They just think it is fun and there are nothing other than fun comes with having sex. Some people tend to have a lot of sex. They say they do it for the satisfaction.

They believe sex is fun. It is perceived to be a great thing from the time one is young. Going to elementary school kids always talked about the day they were going to have sex. They looked forward to it. Where they got the idea that sex was such a great of hours. Hopefully people will begin to look at everything they can lose from having sex before marriage. The same goes for those who can not be monogamous.

People should hold themselves to a higher standard. If people had more confidence I believe that they would feel they needed to have sex to impress people or to make people happy. Sex should be a result of love and should have more meaning than it does to some people. The entire point is sex has before marriage has consequences. There are many and I've only touched based on a few. If I were to go over every reason that sex was wrong the list would never end. Our fathers understood that sex was a blessed experience made only for married couples as a way to express their love and desire for each other.

However, our youths today think of sex as a fun-thing; they have the belief that it is okay to have sex with who ever one is having a relationship with, and youths engage in several relationships before deciding to settledown. Yet, our fathers were right with their opinion about sex; sex shouldbe a blessed ordeal and not a fun thing. Youths should try and preservethemselves for marriage, but in a situation where a person cannot holdhimself he should then try and protect himself by using a condom because ofthe effect to get married and raise the baby together, but things don'talways turn out well after the marriage; these couples may not knowthemselves too well. In the event of the marriage they might find outdifferent sides of the opposite person that they don't like, and they mayfinally break up.

<https://assignbuster.com/premarital-who-can-not-be-monogamous-people-should/>

This doesn't go to the betterment of the child eitherbecause he may end up being raised by a single parent and deprived of theother. All these dreadful things can be avoided by merely abstaining fromsex till one is married, but when the urge to have sex cannot be overcomethen the person involved should use a condom to protect himself.