

"favourite university
experience moment
to date"

Education

ASSIGN BUSTER

Experience My favourite experience moment to was the first day a visiting cameto our class to deliver a lecture. I was in second year and I had seen the famous professor. I had only read his books and watched him in debates shown on television. His name was Prof. Gregory Marks. With two Master's degrees, I was assured that day that I would learn a lot from the eminent Philosophy don. After entering the class, it was around 10 a. m. in the morning, he reminded us that philosophers were wise people since ages. Thereafter, he produced twos: one written by Socrates and the other one he had written in the late 1990s and the essence of liberties and inner human understanding (Alder et al 134). I produced my notebook and pen and started to write important points that came from him. One of the enduring lessons he told us during the lecture was that the inner self was an integral component of human existence that would lead us everywhere. Prof. Gregory advised the class to always strive for internal motivation when pursuing all human endeavours such as career and love. I always consider the most favourite because after that, I started working on a project of book writing that I had always postponed for a long time. Additionally, I started believing in myself because he told the class self-confidence and self-esteem were vital instruments of excellence in the world. Before he left, he posed to the class: who does not want to be great?

Work Cited

Alder, Bruce et al. International Development: Ideas, Experience and Prospects. New York, NY: SAGE. 2014. Print.