

The stock market for the future

ASSIGN BUSTER

Johann Sun The Stock Market for the future 11/30/09 The Stock Market for the future Let's just say, what will you think if a sensitive Nerd of some kind living in the Bahamas, or an eight-year-old working as a NASA space shuttle designer Right now you would think it is impossible, right But it all can happen if the reality of how much money is worth can change it all. In other words the stock market game can make the impossible possible for the future. The first stock my team chose was Nintendo Inc. I had always thought that gaming companies were making lots of money.

So since everyone liked it, we bought it. That was the worst decision our group ever made. The stock for Nintendo was so low we had to sell it immediately. Then our next choice was Apple.

Everybody was mentioning it so we decided to take a look. We had to be more careful than last time, so we decided to split up and look at different resources that apple might be good. It was doing great at that time so we bought one thousand shares. The risk for apple was okay for my group. Since our last stock didn't turn out well we had to be cautious in case it goes down again. Apple sold electronics so when our group first heard about it, we had to think hard because the electronic store Circuit City had bankrupted and lost money for many shares. This could cause a great loss in our money and the entire game. We had to investigate more; we asked family and friends who are in the stock market right now about apple.

In the end all of the sources our group went through, all of them said apple was good, so we bought one thousand shares. Everybody wants a space in the world. So that means that they should save up money for the stuff they want as well, just like me. If I ever wanted a house right now, the stock market game can help me with all sorts of decisions, such as what houses to buy or stuff like that. But in literal terms an eleven year old like me wouldn't be able to buy a house, but if they did, the stock market game can help them a lot. The stock market game can not only help you buy a house, but other things too. Such as figuring out how to manage your college career while trying to find out if your job can afford all the loans you're taking and planning for the next day.

Even when you grow up and get more responsibilities, the trip through the stock market game will be helpful more then you will ever think it is. Oh, and the most important thing, it can help you plan for the future so one day you will be grateful to be in this stock market game. One day, maybe twenty years later, you might be in your vacation in the Bahamas with a bit of luck will find yourself relaxing on the beach with that sensitive Nerd while watching that eight year old fixing a damaged spacecraft out of nowhere. Well, now with all this stock market game experience, a few thoughts, the company Apple, can be the stock market of the future.

Who knows