Culture/Tradition Señora de GuadalupeA tradition in Mexico, that's celebrated by the catholic community is that they celebrate The Virgin Mary's encounter with a man in 1531. Lady Guadalupe is a saint who is worshipped by many in the catholic religion as I stated before. The Virgin Mary (Lady Guadalupe) who appeared to Juan Diego, a poor Indian who converted into Catholicism after his encounter with the saint, soon told everyone in his village the patron of Mexico had made an appearance in his life in 1531.

While no one believed him that the Virgin Mary had came to him, the image of the Virgin Mary was imprinted on his cloak as proof days after. Diego's clothing now hangs in the Basilica de Guadalupe in Mexico City, and every year, on December 12, it's a tradition that many Mexicans honor their saint with parades, religious celebrations, and feast. <http://traveltips.usatoday.com/major-holidays-festivals-mexico-1411.html>

Geography: The Climate in Mexico varies according to its topography. Along the coast of Mexico it's hot and humid, the weather gets even more muggy in the summer. Places with higher elevations such as Guadalajara which is 5,200 feet above sea level. Has a normal climate which is not too hot and not too cold.

Mexico City has a higher elevation of 7,545 feet above sea level, therefore the winters there are the opposite of the ones in Guadalajara, they are more freezing. Besides Guadalajara and Mexico City, the rest of Mexico has a similar weather like the one in the United States; since as our seasons change and we experience different kinds of temperatures, Mexico receives most of the time, the same kind of weather as the seasons change, just like us. <http://www.focusonmexico.com/climate-mexico/> As you read from this paper, Mexico has many different traditions and attractions that many tourists and professional soccer players would enjoy, so if you happened to be traveling to Mexico any time soon; hopefully you'll visit the attractions, try the traditions and enjoy the weather!"Work Cited
