

Computer chapter 8

when you type a URL into the address bar and press the enter key, internet explorer automatically adds `http://` to the URL and then displays the page if you are using the internet explorer app via a touch screen, you can use a swipe to move between recently viewed pages you use the search icon to conduct a search using the default search site for internet explorer when using the internet explorer app, if a page extends below the bottom of the screen, you can scroll to see the rest of the page web pages are displayed on tabs in the internet explorer desktop application when you pin a web page to the start screen, it appears as a tile to the right of the tiles already on the screen a favorite is a shortcut to a web page saved in a list in the internet explorer desktop application by default, web pages are kept in internet explorer history for 20 days when using the mail app clicking the send button moves the message from your computer onto your email server a red wavy line under a word you type in the message section of mail means the word is not in the built-in spell checker you manually check for new incoming mail by clicking the sync button on the apps bar*

if you receive an email message that includes multiple recipients, and you wish to respond back to the same list of recipients, use the __ commandreply all a happy face or sad face image placed in a message text of an email is called a(n)emoticon

a(n) __ is a file you send with an email messageattachment the collected information about a contact in the people app is called a(n)profile

ONCOMPUTER CHAPTER 8 SPECIFICALLY FOR YOUFOR ONLY$13.

90/PAGEOrder Now