Over the last 20 years people are moving to the cities instead of the countrysides. In this essay we will see that it is due.

Undoubtedly, countryside is a good place to live because you are in contact with the nature and you are going to have a calm life. First of all, if you live in the countryside is easier to go for a walk in contact with trees and vegetation. Secondly, you will have a calm life because ultimately in the countryside lives less people.

However, in the cities you can be in touch with many people and you can do different activities. For one thing, when you live in a city, you have more opportunities to be with people all day, it's impossible to get bored because you can go to bars, restaurants and you can get all staff that you need because there are many shops. Another important point is that you have many opportunities to practice exercise, since running or cycling in the street or simply going for a walk, until going to the modern gyms with many exercising machines, modern cardio-vascular machines, and saunas, changing rooms and showers.

Besides, in the cities there are many companies such as international companies as local companies, and it is easier to find a job because you have more opportunities to find a new job if you have lost your job.

To sum up, although the countryside is a good place to live because you are in contact with the nature and you are going to have a calm life. In the city you will be in touch with many people and you will be able to do different activities and it's going to be easier to find a job.
