Fuel Tank Explosion in Wapello County On 8th July, at about 08: 30 a. m. a fuel tank was exploded while off-loading its fuel and gasoline in a still storage in Blacksburg village. The village is situated in the state of Iowa, Wapello County. The Wapello county Sheriff's office has confirmed the chain of explosion was instigated after a fuel tanker explosion near a school building. Some of the other fuel tankers parked nearby caught the fire and exploded. The fire extinguishers had rushed the site and the 374 residents' Blacksburg town was evacuated soon after the explosion. The evacuation orders were relaxed at 11: 40 a. m. when the fire was controlled by the fire department. The cause of the explosion is yet to be investigated.
