The registration of birth is a fundamental rights that every child should get from the moment of their birth. Every children have their right to get protection for growing in a safe and comfortable environment.

A child who is not registered at birth will have risk exposed in danger of being denied the right to an official identity, a recognised name and a nationality. A birth certificate is a child's passport to get protection. Birth registration is the state's official record of a child's birth and a government first acknowledgement of a child's existence. This is a procedure for ensuring that a child fulfill the requirement to get protection as a Malaysia citizen.

In Malaysia, National Registration Department (NRD) is the authority that represented government for the registration of a new born. In order to require protection from Malaysia government, a child citizenship status must be determined by NRD. Birth registration is a must procedure to ensure the identity of a new born, as it is a permanent and official record of a child's existence. A child without a birth certificate is a child that loss in the area of protection, as a child will be 'invisible' in the eyes of law. In other word, a child without having a birth certificate would give a statelessness identity him or her.

Statelessness is defined as a person who is not a registered citizen of any country. Meanwhile, a stateless person received very limited protection under law provided. 4) An access key for education Nowadays, education is very important for every one especially children. Getting an education seems applicable to every children but in the lack of birth certificate to prove them as a citizen, children might getting hardship for having education. Instead of getting education in government school, they have to go to private school where cost an arm and a leg for non effortless parents. In another word, a birth certificate is also important to ensure a child enrol in school at the right age.

Majority children would start their pre-school education at the age of 3 , entering kindergarten for 2 years and start their primary school education at 7 years old. In Malaysia, every children are obligate to get education.

In this modern new era, children who lack of access to education will suffer from disadvantages. Birth registration can have a fundamental impact on the right to education for children. A child without a birth certificate, will being refused to be accept in a school. Futhermore, if children are permitted to attend primary school without evidence of birth registration, a birth certificate is required to be able to take the final school examinations and thus to receive relevant academic qualifications or to progress secondary school.

Access to educational scholarships, free books and uniforms also often depend on the presentation of a birth certificate. 5) Providing access to health care The registration of birth is important for a child as it open up a world of health care. Every citizen is entitled to the facilities provided on health care in country. A citizen will having a low cost of payment in health care provided by government. Nowadays in Malaysia, instead of birth certificates, children are now available to proceed MyKid. MyKid is for Malaysia citizen under age of 12 including new borns.

However, MyKid registration is not compulsory as MyKad. Both identity card have the same function that manage the storage of health information of the card holder. MyKid also function to manage the immunisation records of a child. Birth registration is important for a child in order to access health care which are provided by government. For example, when linked with medical records, birth registration systems can alert health care providers to the presence of children needing vaccination.

An accurate information on birth is important to track the progress of health care of a child, especially a newborn who are obligate to get immunisation as hu yu in Malaysia. Every children have the right to health. A newborn or a kid who are identified as a Malaysian, will get immunisation for free. Immunisation vaccines are provided free of charge in all Ministry of Health Malaysia facilities. An immunisation should be started on the first visit for children. Kids who have delayed visit to the clinic for immunisation, will not be given immunisation.
