Before leading a Muslim to Christianity, one should have obvious grounds on why you want to convert the particular individual to Christianity? Do you need to show to others something and are you feeling compelled to do it? Has God put this aspiration in your heart or do you just actually love the individual and care for the person and you want him/her to come with you to bliss? Have an apparent perception of Christianity and ask yourself that am I a devoted Christian and do I put God first in my life?

Ask him/her to come to church, if your friend doesn't want to then introduce that individual to some of your Christian mates so that he/she can feel the care and affection that we share towards one another. Be kind to others, setting a good example is also a major thing; be kind not only to him/her but to all. All the time have a smile on your face and be contented, as God always wants our light to excel and our actions can bring up a great blow to others.

Be his/her closest friend, be there as much as you can and if you find him/her in a bad situation, do not just wait and say you are sorry but rather help them. Don't lose hope, it may be the scenario that your mate may not ever be willing to be a Christian, but if you just always keep this in mind that God is at your face, and that everything is worth likely, don't ever forego your dream and keep pressing ahead. Nissar Hussein from Bradford

West Yorkshire was born and lifted in Britain turned from Islam to Christianity along with his spouse Qubra in 1996.

The report exclaims that he was subjected to many assaults and after being told that his place would be burnt if he did not apologize and got back to Islam, reported the threat to the cops. Not understanding the seriousness of religion in an Islamic context For the majority in the western world a choice to follow Jesus Christ is very grave indeed, but if the individual says yes it will have an only a restricted effect on the persons instant conditions. Not so with a Muslim, the Quran educates very strongly that any Muslim who adapts to a new religion, whether it is Christianity or some other faith system is culpable of apostasy and must be slaughtered.

This is accepted in all Islamic states but since those living in the west cannot slay a person for changing religions, though friends and family will exercise other very ruthless means to keep the individual a Muslim which may comprise kidnapping, captivity, beatings, and total elimination from the family. Even impending a person with the gospel puts the individual into a very complicated position, they dread what others will utter if they speak with a Christian and they also panic for their spirit since the Muslims have been trained from birth that to change into a Christian will drive them to the sixth stage of hell.

The Christian witnesses must comprehend how grave a material this is for the Muslim and their relatives, in witnessing to a Muslim you have to be conscious that the person you are working with, if they believe Christ they will most likely be victimized and could even be slaughtered. Many Americans just do not understand how stern a change in religion can be in a Muslim situation. Conclusion Christians must not be scared of witnessing to Muslims but somewhat should assertively search out Muslims to talk with and the most significant part of witness to Muslims is being led by the sacred Spirit.

He will demonstrate you how best to move towards the Muslim; I must add that the most effectual means of helping a Muslim find Jesus Christ is immobile love. One Islamic chief stated at a large meeting of Muslim priests recently " Do not permit your people to have very close contact with Christians for the cause that if you make, the Christians will adore your people into their beliefs," this is still correct at present.
